

Chartiers Valley Partnership Campaign (2003-2011)

Chartiers Valley Partnership (1998-2011)

Capital Campaign to Restore the Library & Music Hall

In the late 1990s, Carnegie native and Carnegie High School Class of 1951 graduate Bill Manby paid a visit to the Library & Music Hall with CHS classmate Bill English as well as good friends Charlie Goetz and Ted Frantz. They found that age, decades of entrenched poverty and egregious water damage threatened the ACFL&MH's very existence. Dismayed by the vulnerable state of the ACFL&MH's beautiful old building, the group agreed that rescuing building was a compelling cause to take on. A partnership was born: the Chartiers Valley Partnership (CVP).

The Partnership launched the capital campaign that raised more than $7.5 million and transformed the Andrew Carnegie Free Library & Music Hall from moribund to magical.

After years of diligent behind the scenes work, the CVP officially launched the capital campaign in November 2003 a $500,000 challenge grant from an anonymous donor. The terms: the CVP must raise a dollar for match in 10 months – from the community – no foundations no Pittsburgh Corporations, no government funding. If the community didn't support its library, why should anyone else?

Carnegie (including people from around the country with ties to the borough) responded generously. Bolstered with leadership gifts from two other CHS class of 1951 alumni, John Leone and Bill Pysh, the campaign hit the boards running. With two weeks left before the September 30 deadline, the campaign was $45,000 short of its goal. Then on September 17, 2004, disaster struck; flooding caused by Hurricane Ivan ravaged Carnegie. In the face of an unequivocal tragedy, the community rallied and contributed an astonishing $60,000 to meet and exceed the goal.

The community's generosity has taken on legendary stature; it is the cornerstone of the campaign's success, the Library & Music Hall's success to date.

The CVP went on to raise more than $7.5 million. The ACFL&MH's lovely historic landmark facility is structurally sound, weatherproof and accessible. Plumbing is no longer lamentable. Music Hall audiences enjoy commodious and comfortable new seating. The Hall's lobby is beautifully restored and equipped with a box office and concession room. Fabulous new dressing rooms welcome performers. In 2010 the ACFL&MH re-opened its national treasure of a Civil War room, the Captain Thomas Espy Post No. 153 of the Grand Army of the Republic, following a meticulous restoration. The Library itself is air conditioned, and the dark and dank gymnasium has been transformed into bright, versatile programming space.

In eight years the Chartiers Valley Partnership raised more than $7.5 million, money that ensures the Library & Music Hall's second century of service as the vibrant and valued "beacon on the hill" not only for Carnegie and surrounding communities, but increasingly as a regional and national attraction. The CVP took stock, and decided its job is done. It formally dissolved at the end of 2011, turning over the responsibility for completing the ACFL&MH's restoration to the Andrew Carnegie Free Library & Music Hall's Board of Trustees. (For the full story on the Chartiers Valley Partnership and the work it did on behalf of the Library & Music Hall read the ACFL&MH Fall 2011 newsletter.)

Gifts to the CVP Capital Campaign (2003-2011)

The following people contributed generously between 2003 and 2011 to the Chartiers Valley Partnership campaign to restore the ACFL&MH's venerable facility. Those with an * contributed multiple times. The ACFL&MH extends heartfelt gratitude to the CVP and its myriad supporters.
