Carlynton Junior-Senior High School
435 Kings Highway
Carnegie, PA 15106
(412) 429-2500

Gotta love that "dead bread!" Christine Konrad and Amanda Van Goor show their enthusiasm for Los Dias Los Muertos.

Bob Wieczorkowski is obviously hard at work. If school didn't begin at 7:00 A.M., he'd get even more work done!

Two of the cutest kids at Carlynton, Rachel Zinger and Audrey Pernell put their acting talents to work and show off their "funny faces."

They're outta here! After a long day at school, Mike Hradil, Sarah Rogers, and Megan Murrmann get ready to head out to their busses.

These junior high girls "jumped" at the chance to be in the yearbook. It's rare to have such eager subjects.

Diana Altomare casts a suspicious glance over her shoulder. Are those yearbook girls following her again?

Junior high students Crystal Warman, Amy Di Pietro, and Jaclyn Schlott watch a pep rally with surprising intensity. Oh, the nail-biting suspense of a CHS cheer!

One For the Ages

No great astronomical signs predicted this year. No celestial fireworks heralded its coming, and no national holiday marks our celebration of it. We, as a society, are approaching the end of a dedade, the end of a century, and the of a millennium.

On a much smaller scale, however, students at Carlynton have faced life as it has always been. We eat the same foods for lunch, gossip about the same people, and go to the same hangouts. We have the same classes, the same teachers, and the same routine day after day.

But there's something special about this year, and it doesn't have to do with giant asteroids or futuristic visitors. It's that we, the students of a little high school in southwestern Pennsylvania, are learning how to change the world. We have the chance to improve our lives and the lives of others in the new millennium. And knowing that, we realize that 1999 truly is one for the ages.

"I feel pretty, oh so pretty!" Matt Kellams is looking divine in his baby-blue frou-frou wear. And the flannel is the finishing touch!

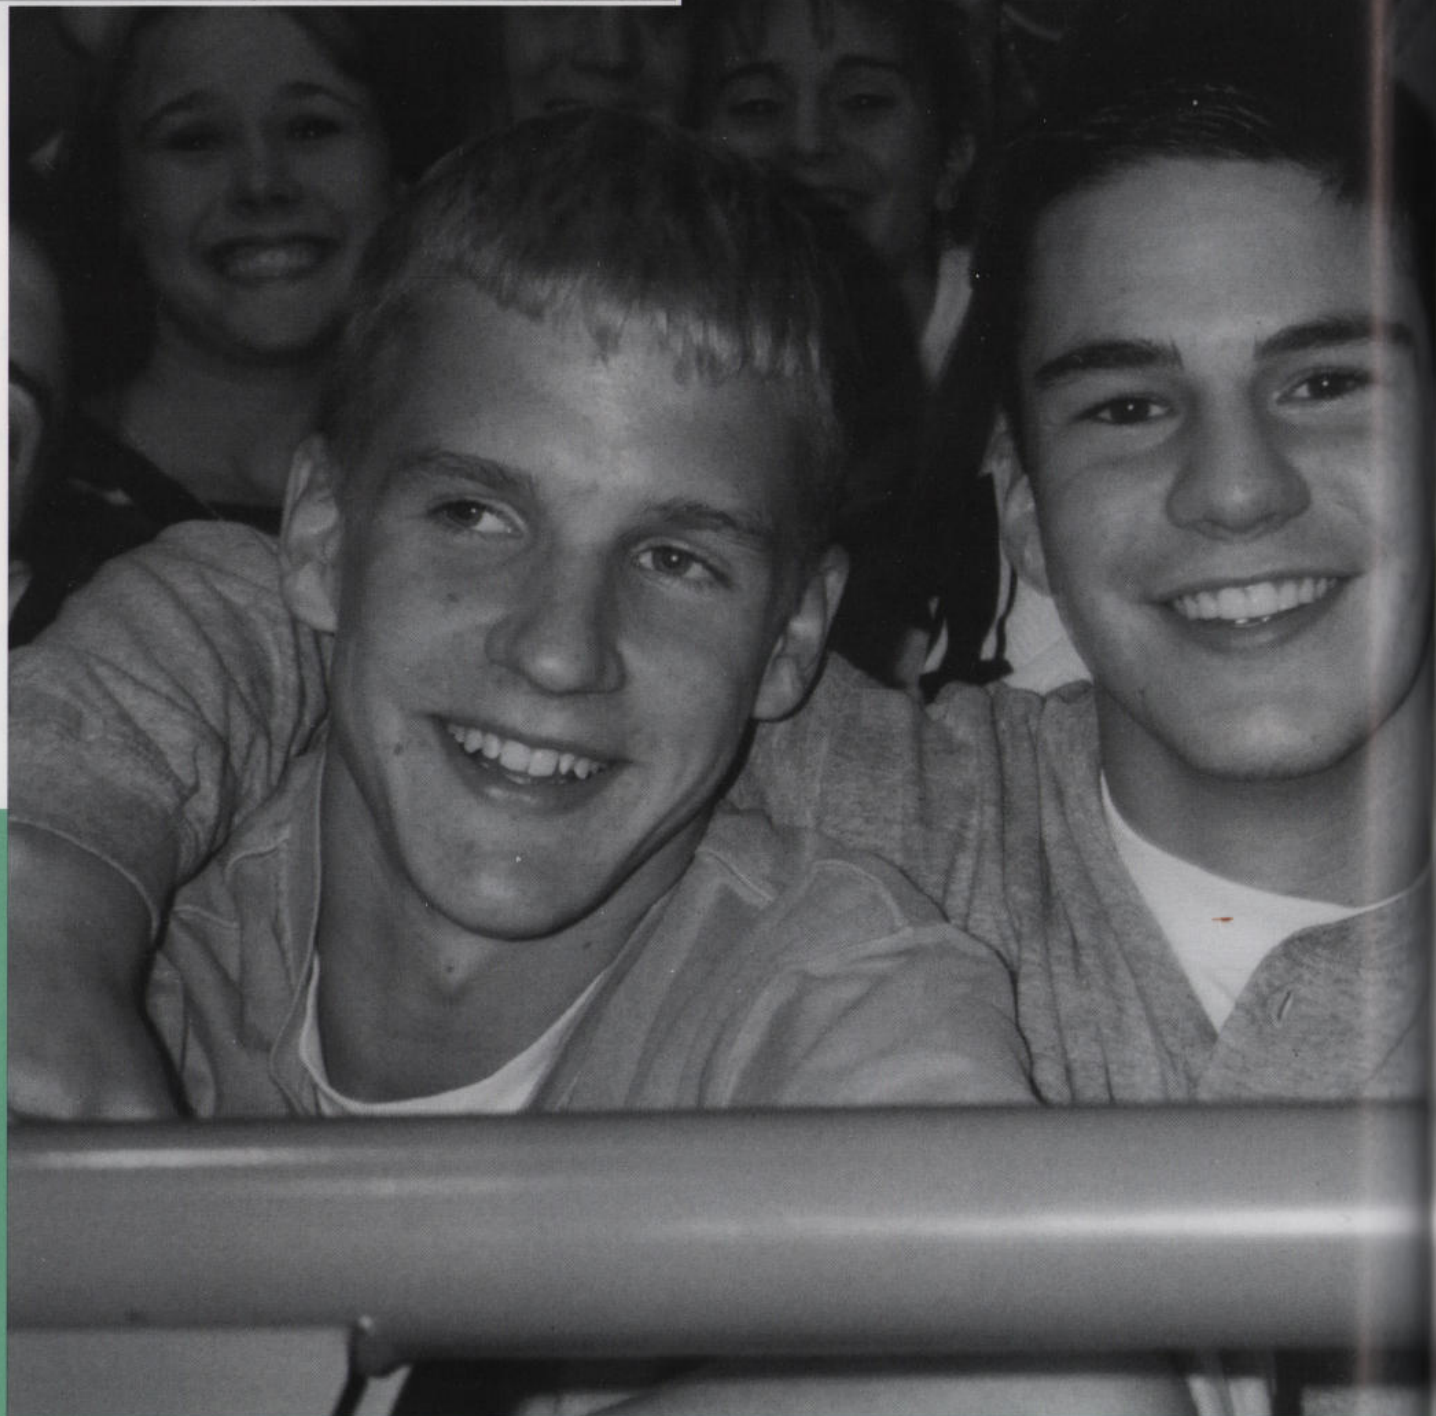

Looks like something other than sodium nitrate split today in Chemistry. Fortunately, Tracy O'Brien can laugh at her own stunt!

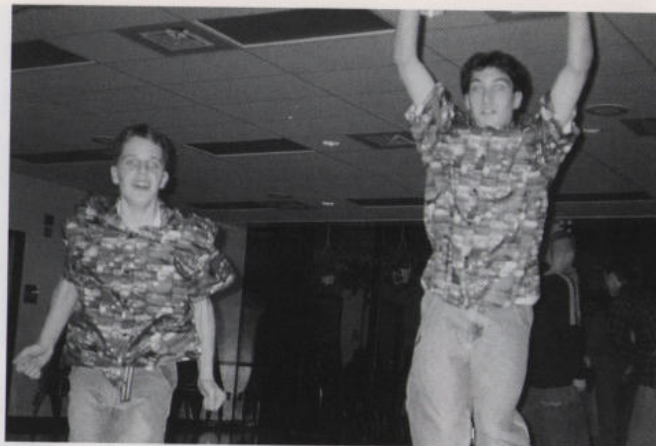

Seniors Andy Schulz and Christi Kolarcik look at life from a different perspective. . .upside down!

Sophomore studs Richie Stacey and Mike Geinzer are all smiles at the pep rally. So, guys, what are you doing this Friday night?

Sophomores Brian
McMahon and
Adam Mittner
"Jump Around" at
Sadie Hawkins.
Having fun, guys?

Living on the Edge

"Living on the edge" doesn't mean that you've got a wild and crazy lifestyle, and it doesn't mean that you're surviving the turn of the millennium. It means that you're packing a week's worth of work into a twenty-four-hour day, and you still have to find time to sleep. It means that the future is wide open for anyone brave enough to jump into it. And it means that you're on the verge of adulthood, but still a kid at heart.

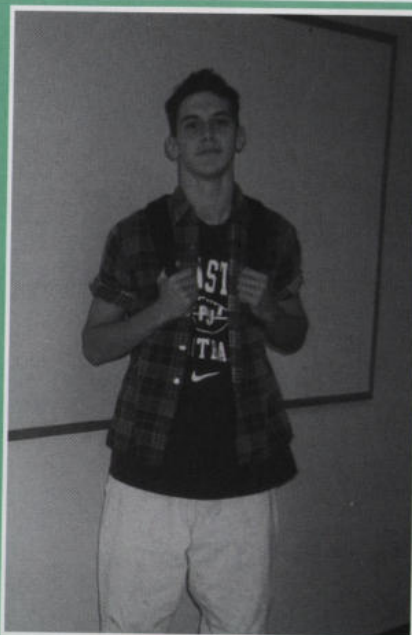

Carlynton students are always on the go. Whether we're reciting Shakespeare (from memory!), kicking a field goal, helping the needy, or running for student government, there's always something to do. CHS offers so many creative outlets: there's the Interact Club and Peer Helpers for those generous enough to share their time; choral groups and band for the musically inclined; and foreign languages for kids who want a fiesta. . .or a siesta.

So this is what "living on the edge" is all about, huh?

We think we like it.

It looks like someone's seen A Night at the Roxbury. Juniors Dave Warga, Andrea Durst, and Rob Wiczorkowski are dancing up a storm at Homecoming!

Is that Josh

No, it's Ray

SCHOOL SPIRIT

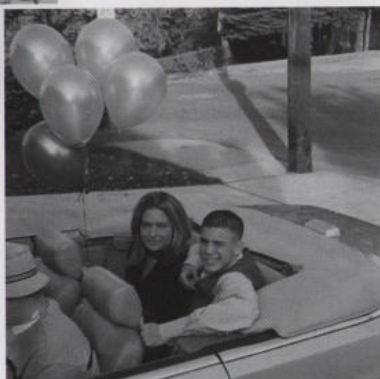

C O U G A R S

Attendants Chrissy Bach, Christi Kolarcik, and Amy Killmeyer are excited to ride in Mr. Killmeyer's Packard.

Dan Butera thinks he's hot stuff because he gets to ride in a convertible with Becky D'Loss.

Renee Mazzoni displays a smile fit for a queen, while Jim Kovanis proves he's only the court jester!

Renee Mazzoni, Angie Burkhardt, Amanda Danhires, Jen Shields, and Becky D'Loss are the lucky five who were voted to the 1998 Homecoming Court.

These musicians adjust their instruments before marching down Washington Avenue to the field.

Strike Up the Band

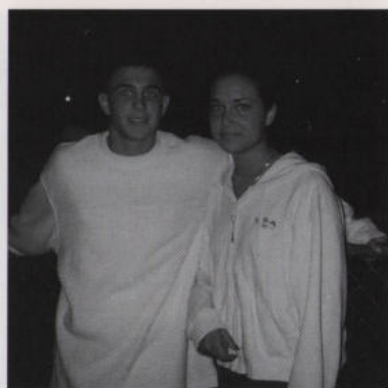

Field of Dreams

Congratulations! The 1998 Homecoming Queen, Renee Mazzoni, proudly walks off the field after being crowned.

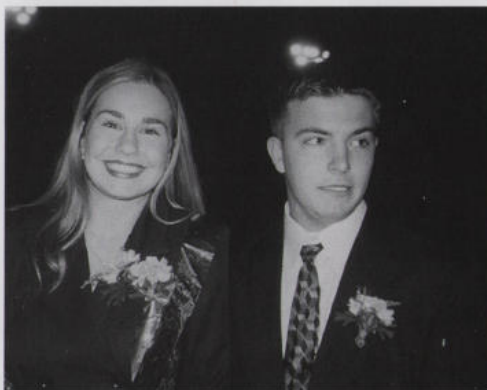

Amanda Geyser and her escort Chad Kolarcik strut across the field.

Don't hate the game babe, hate the player. Dan Butera takes time out from watching the game to chill with Becky D'Loss.

Christi Kolarcik and Lauren Ban congratulate each other.

Captured on film, Amanda Danhires and Mike LeRoy show their excitement about Homecoming. . . well, Amanda does anyway.

Keeping her composure before a performance, Rachel Finger stands with buddy Josh Storey.

Hey Cougars, as long as you try there's still hope.

Strike a pose you sexy thang! Angelo Sestili struts his stuff while escorting court member Chrissy Bach.

Months Christin Sciuilli and Becky wonder ask that age-old question. . .so what is a Prexy, anyway?

Friends Angela Burkhart, Cari Dombrowski, and Jen Shields take time out from all the excitement to share a moment.

Senior Pep Rally

These senior girls are happy to be members of the football team for a day, and the guys are just as excited to be escorted by such beautiful young ladies!

Pro-wrestler Chris Kelton has just two words to say to the seniors: "Pep rally!" We love you, Chris!

Amy Gizoni, Dave Roche and Lou Hankowsky show their senior pride in the gym. Nice hair, Lou.

The Class of '99 gathers in the center of the gym to find out what their senior song will be. This isn't just a special pep rally, but it's an important time for the seniors to come together as friends.

Heeky Thielet, Liz Veri, Mandy Danhires, Christi Kolarcik and Amanda Geyser get pumped up for the Senior Night game.

The second line of Cougar defense? Chrissy Bach and Lauren Ault can't wait to show off their jerseys in front of the whole school!

Alex Rogers struggles to carry Erica Francis across the gym. When's the last time you went to the weight room, Alex? Erica's not heavy!

Christi Kolarcik falls for Tony Fielder as the rest of the senior dancers work their parachute magic for an appreciative crowd.

Heeky Thielet reads her poem to her class as Chris Kelton gazes out into the sea of many-eyed senior faces.

A gang of senior girls takes time out for a group hug before some of them get ready to do their dance.

SENIOR DRESS-UP DAY

Didn't anyone ever teach Andy Schulz not to chew with his mouth open? Jon Durst desires Shawn's protective embrace, and Shawn Columbus is so disgusted that he tosses his cookies and his face.

Look! It's Tiffany! Oops! Sorry, it's just Angie Burkhart. Even though Angie isn't a superstar, she still has bunches of fans.

Hey Nate Stelzner, it's 7:00; where's your costume?

Renee Mazzoni, is disguised as that infamous Hamburglar, tries to take a bite out of Jamie "Big Mac" McIntosh. Would you like fries with that?

SENIOR DRESS-UP DAY

Mike Lamy gets in touch with his feminine side and Kim Reitenwald is there to lend her support.

Senior Ryan Reczek demonstrates the harmful effects of too much UV radiation. Didn't your mother ever tell you to wear sunscreen?

Hanan Mangis does her impression of Keri Strugg. Luckily, this time Hanan is just pretending!

Liz Veri shows that she has a big heart by letting costumeless Chris Wilson borrow part of her outfit.

Cute as bug in a rug, friends Jen Falcioni and Lauren Ault display their Halloween costumes with pride.

Gina Nemetz displays some bad-girl style, while Nicole Reinhart makes the fashion faux pas of the century -- wearing white after Labor Day!

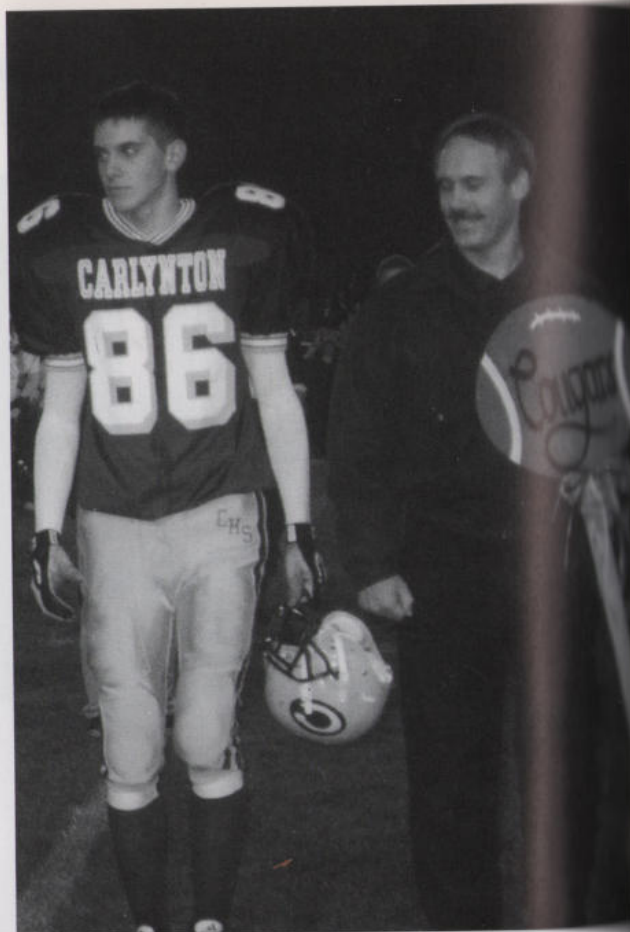

Good friends Naureen "The Pakistani Princess" Raja, Becky "Prehistoric Spice" Thielet, and Amanda "Super Mandy" Palmer show off their cute costumes.

The talented young band starlets., (and Chris and Ken) realize that this is their last Carlynton performance. Buck up, gang! There's always the "Mercy Bowl" to look forward to.

Ray Walkowiak and his proud papa strut down the field in a way that only a father and his son can.

Senior soccer stars Davor Komljenovic, Wilber Ching, and Chris Wilson receive praise from their fans Mr. Moskowitz, Mr. Van Goor, and Dr. Johnston.

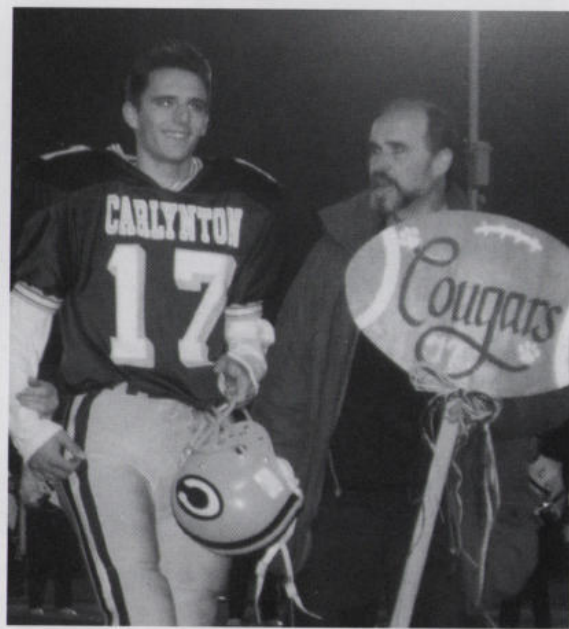

Our Night to Shine

Chris Kelton's face shines with joy as his parents escort him across the field.

How do you say "the Cougars kicked butt" in Bosnian, D. K.?

The Valentines are lucky to have raised such a talented boy. At least Eric seems to think so!

The Engans take a leisurely stroll down the 50-yard line.

These soccer "divas" finished their last season with a great record, wonderful memories, and lasting friendships. You rock, girls!
Back row from left to right: Mr. Usher, Mr. Pollus, Dr. Johnston, and Mr. Muraco.
Front row: J. McIntosh, C. Kolarcik, A. Killmeyer, C. Conrad, Q. Mangis, and N. Reinhart.

Mr. Valalik's class huddles for warmth and comfort before going out to tabulate hermit crab, crayfish, and blue heron populations at Independence Marsh.

This time Mr. Valalik really does make his students walk the line! A.P. Bio kids balance buckets and boxes as they cross the "bridge" at Independence Marsh.

"It's all natural!"

In this shot from a few years ago, Mr. Palonis demonstrates the healing power of fertilizer-by taking a dive into the heap! Ah, memories.

Hey seniors, remember this Mr. Palonis' partner in crime Phil McCracken, takes credit for the "dirty work!"

Anyone up for a sing-along? G.A.T.E kids Sarah Rankin, Kristie McGrogan and David Sciulli prepare for a rousing chorus of "Row, Row, Row Your Boat!"

These G.A.T.E kids had a smashing good time at the Pittsburgh Public Theater's performance of "Over the Tavern-The Sequel." They would definitely recommend it!

FIELD TRIPS

This is the view from Carlynton's annual ski trip at Seven Springs. Hope you're not afraid of heights.

Elizabeth Rogers takes a tumble down the icy slopes of Seven Springs. If at first you don't succeed, Liz. . .

Despite the cold weather, sophomores Kirk Smith and Elizabeth Rogers seem to be enjoying themselves.

After dinner at Bruchetta's these seniors mill about the lobby of Heinz Hall before their pre-performance tour begins. Everything seems to have fallen into place tonight. . . including Paula Walkos!

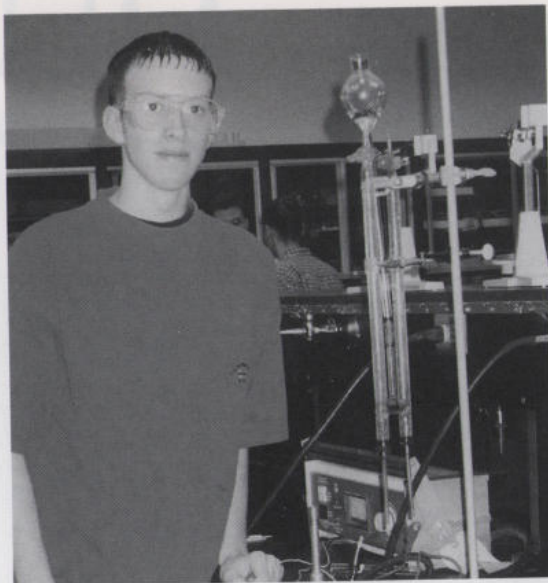

Thanks to Mrs. Lear and Mr. Pederson, seniors in the music department, like as Jen Shields and Gina Peters, are able to enjoy a performance of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra each year. The seniors want to thank both of the teachers for an evening of culture!

Lucky lady Angela Burkhardt has two dates for the evening's performance: Cari Dombrowski and Ken Engan!

Matt Megyesy shows his concern for safety in Chem-lab. Everything about this boy screams, "I love chemistry!"

In their spare time, Renee Mazzoni, Matt Kellams, Jaimee Popivchak, and Andrea Francken form a four-part percussion band in Parent and Child Development.

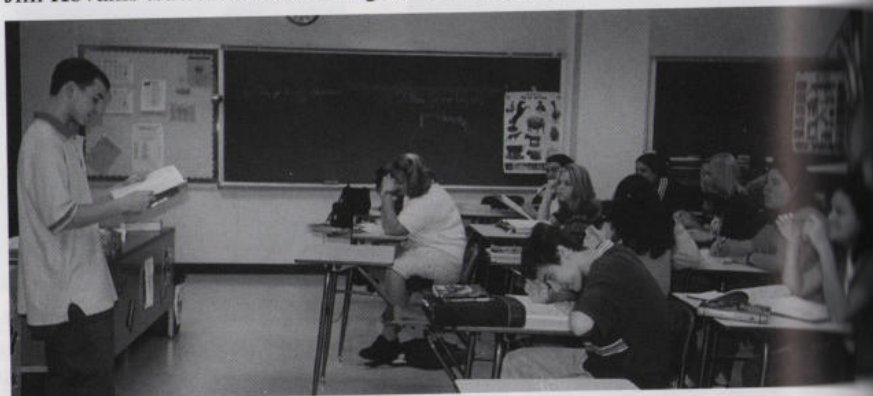

Hard At Work

Jeff Soles gives a wonderful answer to a difficult question. His classmates listen intently Jim Kovanis teaches an enthralling lesson to an attentive French III class.

Aren't little kids cute? Lisa Gonze and Andrea Francken remember what it was like to be young and carefree. Parent and Child Development lets students interact with toddlers in Observation School.

Seniors Courtney Bold and Christi Kolarcik are computer savvy. They enjoy looking up information on the net.

Wow! Look at that guy! Jackie Smith and Diane Altomore share a friendly moment, but Andrea Durst seems to be more interested in someone across the cafeteria.

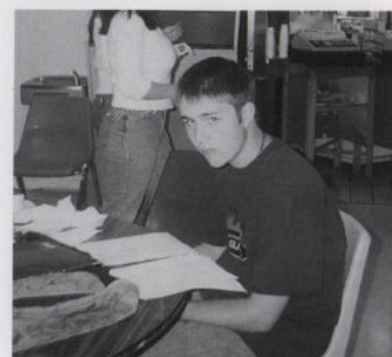

Whatever happened to the four basic food groups? Chad Jeseke chows down on cheese pretzel with ketchup & mustard.

Out To Lunch

Chris Kelton and Rachel Zinger sit down at lunch together to share some Itza Pizza.

Steve Logsdon demonstrates that lunch is for more than eating. Where else would he do his P.O.D. homework?

Larry McDaniel, Chris McCaskey, & Taurean Williams take some time out from annoying the table next to them to actually eat lunch.

Ken Engan is more interesting, in Naureen Raja's book than in his lunch. Is the story really interesting Ken?

Halloween Dance

Right: Stephanie Walnoha, Jamie DeLuca and Meredith McDermott aren't into the "Halloween thing." But even without the costumes, these girls are still cute—and they know it!

Left: It's Culture Club meets conjoined twins! Or, at least, Jessica Kline, Patrick Sweeney, and Erica Pettigrew seem to think so!

Hey, Justin Riley! How do you say "Look at my little red kazoo" in Spanish?

Sadie Hawkins Dance

Oh, who is that studly man? Why, it's our own Mr. Usher! Who knew he could look so good in a flannel?

Junior Rachel Zinger, sophomores Brian McMahon and Adam Mittner and junior Lindsay Sakai form a wacky, well-dressed barbershop quartet and croon to a few love songs at the dance. You kids look great in those shirts!

Angie Burkhardt, Kim Rectenwald, Shawn Columbus, and Davor Komljenovic bust some moves on the dance floor and still have time for a little senior bonding before the night is over.

Newly crowned "Harvest King" Ken Fugrins with his date Becky Thielet. His Majesty must be proud.

Amy Killmeyer, Christi Kolarcik, and Liz Veri decorate the cafeteria for the dance. These girls plan great events for the high school.

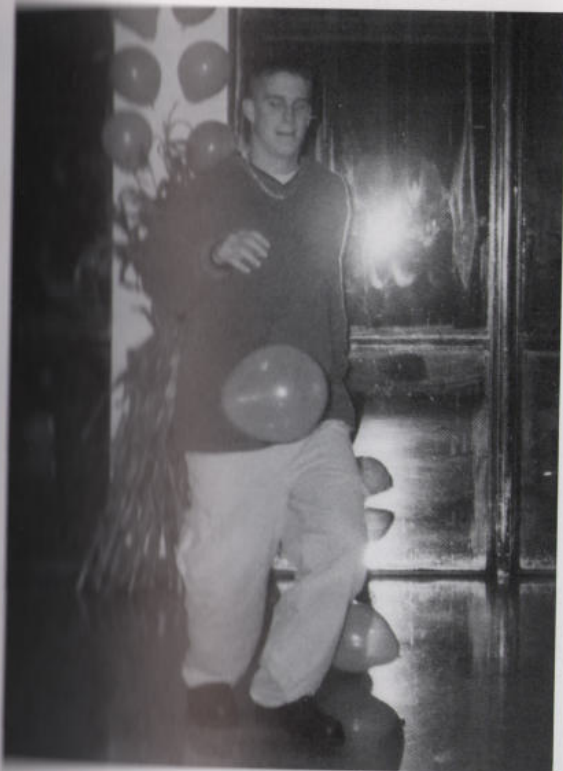

From head to toe, these girls are dressed to kill! Junior friends Leanne Musiol and Suzie Impavido show off their matching ensembles.

Andy Schulz, Glenn Bell, and a very amorous Mike LeRoy pause for a giddy moment as they try to locate their dates.

Will McMahon has left his date for a balloon. Better get back to her, Will, or things could get ugly.

The tradition of Sadie Hawkins began in a comic strip called Li'l Abner. The mayor in this cartoon had a daughter named Sadie who was, sad to say, quite an ugly young lady. Her father, feeling sympathetic, established a yearly race in which the unmarried girls of the town were allowed to chase all the unmarried men, and they were allowed to marry them!

So this is how our matching-flannel custom began! The girls ask the guys, the cafeteria is decked with corn stalks, balloons, and bales of hay, and everyone has fun.

This year's Harvest King (a male version of Spring Queen) was Ken Engan. He definitely seemed surprised to wear that crown! And one can only hope that this enjoyable tradition will continue, plaid, overalls, and all!

Apparently, Sadie Hawkins isn't just a night for fun! Romance is in the air as a couple embraces.

Ray, it's just a balloon! Chrissy Bach explains the science behind it, but Ray Walkowiak just wants to inhale the helium!

Was plaid that popular with the faculty in the 70's?! Editors Amanda Palmer, Christin Sciulli, and Kim Rectenwald share a few laughs and a few old faculty pictures with Mr. Patsko and Mr. Muraco.

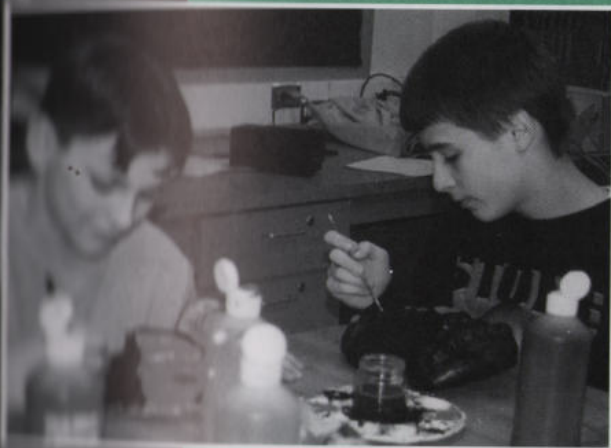

The honorable delegate from Turkey, Rachel Zinger, diligently writes name tags for the delegation at DUMUN.

Toodle that clarinet, Chris! The Carlynton Marching Band performs before a pep rally audience.

It's Playtime!

Students can take on responsible roles as well as fun ones. There are numerous clubs that help not only the people involved in them, but other students and members of the community as well. Some organizations are open to all students, and some are reserved for a certain kind of individual. Peer Helpers spend a lot of time mediating arguments and advising troubled students, and Interact members volunteer and raise money for charitable organizations. The foreign language department has faculty members that try to bring culture to their students (with a party every so often!). Not to mention, there are many more electives that students can choose, including ones that involve field trips. . .and who doesn't love field trips?

Jon Rickerd and Russell Hatcher put the finishing touches on their art projects.

"Don't touch the unit!" The cast members of "Solos" toy with the idea of defying Mrs. Lear's strictest rule. Just don't get caught!

INTERACT

The Interact Club is a community service group sponsored by the Carnegie Rotary. With over fifty members, the club is a popular Carlynton organization. Throughout the school year, members take part in many community oriented projects.

This year's fall projects included the annual hay ride, "Trick or Treat For Hunger" and volunteering at Phantoms In The Park, a club favorite. Also during the fall, students tutor elementary students after school at the Boys' and Girls' Club.

Holiday projects included Christmas Caroling, Breakfast with Santa, and the Rotary Christmas Pageant. Also through the Salvation Army, members participated in bell-ringing, and bought gifts to donate for the "Angel Tree" program. Interact is a great way to make new friends and help others.

The annual Interact Hay Ride.

Remembering their youth with nostalgia, Renee Mazzoni and Jamie MacIntosh help their new little friend put together a puzzle.

How do you make s'mores out of mini-marshmallows? Caitlyn Green and Emily Weinheimer demonstrate for the rest of the members of Interact Club.

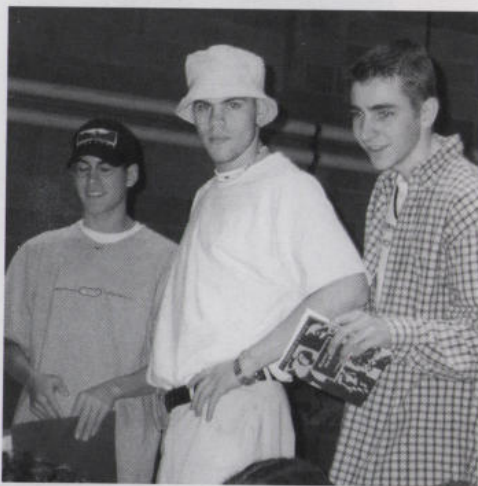

Senior Interact members Renee Mazzoni and Jamie MacIntosh are having a blast. Who knew "babysitting" for the Crafton PTA could be so much fun?

Each year, The Interact Club puts an "Angel Tree" in the library. Students are encouraged to pick an angel and purchase a Christmas gift for a less fortunate child.

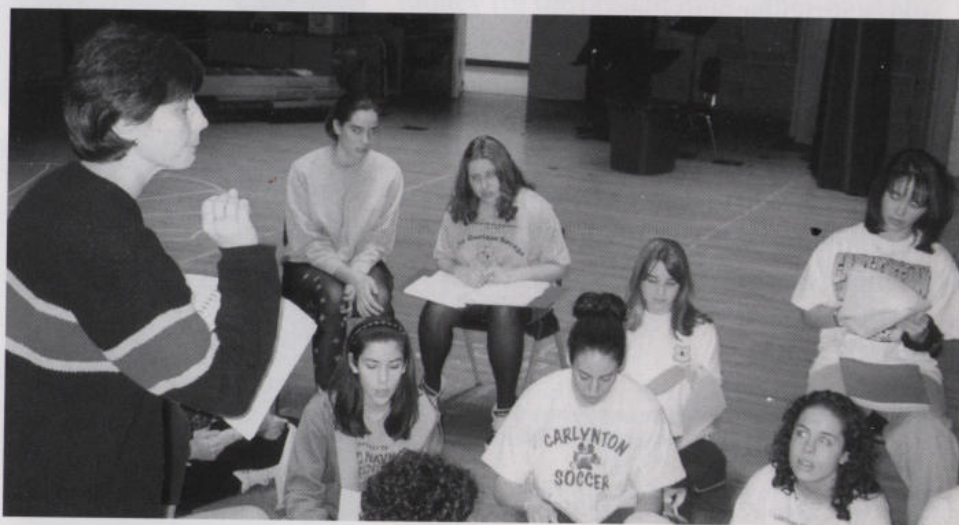

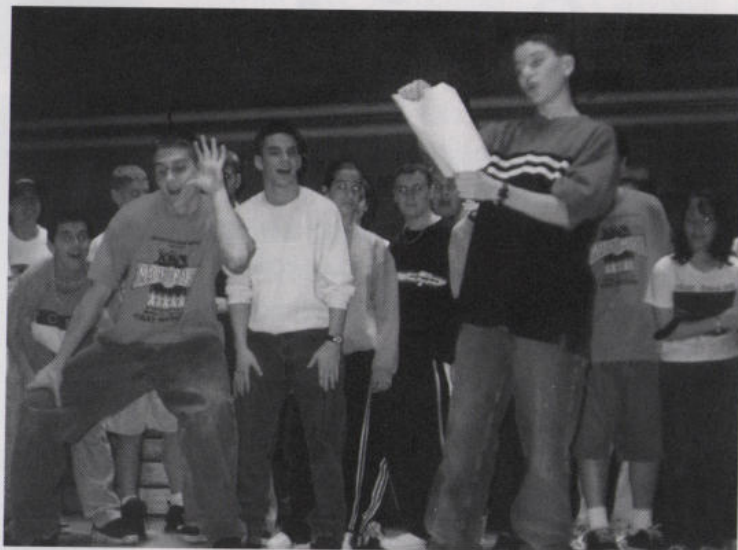

"Cinderella"

With a number of newcomers and a cast of veterans, the musical this year was a unique experience.

"Cinderella", a show by Rodgers and Hammerstein, was performed by a cast of over a hundred students performing on stage, in the orchestra, or working on sets, lighting, ushering, and make-up. Here is a sneak preview of what's to come in the supplement, and here's to the future stars of the stage and screen!

National Junior Honor Society

Mrs. Eddy is the sponsor of the National Junior Honor Society. Members of the NJHS Faculty Council are Mr. Usher, Mr. Tomasic, Mrs. Carroll, Mrs. Mannina, and Mr. Gearing. Students become candidates by having a grade point average of 92% or higher, but it requires more than grades to be accepted. Candidates must complete an application which also focuses on community services and projects, leadership qualities, awards, achievements, and extracurricular activities.

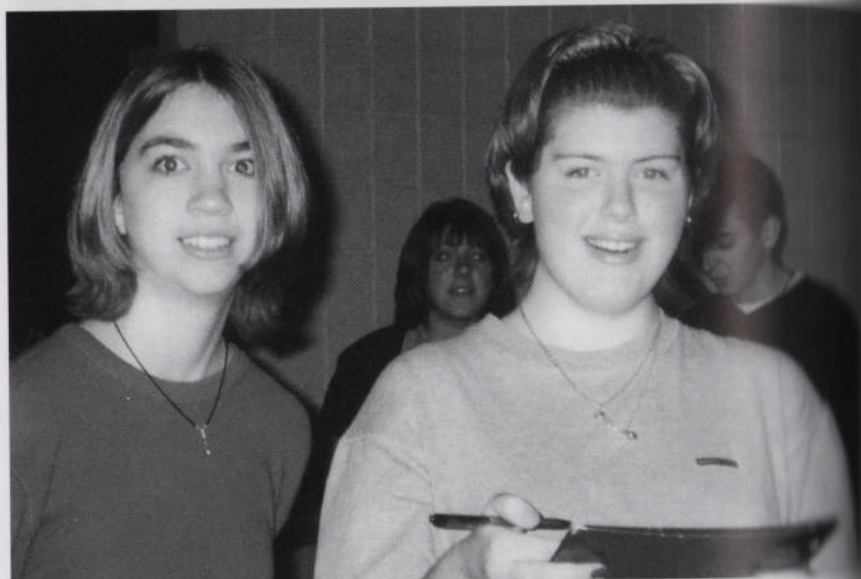

Once inducted, members must maintain their GPA of 92% or higher, and participate in projects to remain in the society. Some of this year's NJHS and NHS projects included caroling to collect money for Children's Hospital, helping Crafton fire victims, and providing tutoring services for CHS students.

-Stephen Walenchok

NJHS meetings in the auditorium are a source of excitement (not to mention an escape from homeroom) in the lives of officers Sarah Rogers and Jessica McWilliams.

NHS sponsor Mrs. Kiser works with NJHS sponsor Mrs. Eddy to coordinate projects between the two organizations.

National Honor Society

With over 50 members, the Carlynton Chapter of the National Honor Society continues to grow each year. The annual induction ceremony was a huge success this year. Following tradition, inductees were sworn in by Mr. Usher during a candlelight ceremony. Honor Society students are selected based on their character, leadership abilities, scholarship, service, and citizenship.

Each year the Honor Society, under the direction of Mrs. Kiser, participates in numerous fundraisers and community service projects. NHS members sold magazines during the month of November to raise money for the organization. They have also contributed food baskets to the Salvation Army. Members either donated money or canned goods. The baskets were presented to needy families in the area. Members have also gone carolling for Children's Hospital, volunteered their time to plant and remove flowers along the Parkway West, and sold Daffodils for cancer awareness.

G. A. T. E.

This year, G.A.T.E. students faced many exciting challenges and innovative experiences. These activities ranged from various academic competitions to informative field adventures, as well as different theatrical productions. Future Problem Solving, Creative Convention, Calcu-Solve and Knowledge Master Open allowed G.A.T.E. students to solve problems and answer challenging questions by using creativity and our cultivated minds. For the second year G.A.T.E. students participated in Model United Nations at both Pitt and Duquesne Universities. The students who attended were able to experience a mock United Nations and parliamentary procedure firsthand. The Crafton Rocket Launch gave high school G.A.T.E. students an opportunity to share their talents with students at Crafton Elementary. The John Heinz History Center, the Carnegie Science Center, and the Carnegie Museum were some field experiences that offered G.A.T.E. students a look at Pittsburgh's past and behind the scenes of the museum. Theatrical performances included the opera La Boheme, the ballet Romeo and Juliet, and Over the Tavern - the Sequel at the Pittsburgh Public Theater. Thanks to Mrs. Muraco's hard work and dedication, the G.A.T.E. program experienced another successful and enjoyable year.

-Rachel Zinger

Ben Hickling shows off his prize at a contest in downtown Pittsburgh. A. I. U. competitions are always tough, but Ben, like other Carlynton kids, shows that he's got what it takes to win!

The Turkish delegation from Pitt's Model U.N. prepares to vote on some crucial issues. Erica Creek, Erica Pettigrew, Jim Kovanis, Dae-Young Jeong, Rachel Zinger, and Andy "Wagon" McDermott give a lot of their time to the various activities sponsored by G.A.T.E.

Mrs. Muraco, caught in a proud moment, celebrates her Model U. N. teams bringing home gold (actually, a Duquesne scholarship).

Nancy LaLanne and a new friend have a wonderful experience at the Creative Convention. These are contests attended by area schools that are won by improvisation, creativity, and innovation.

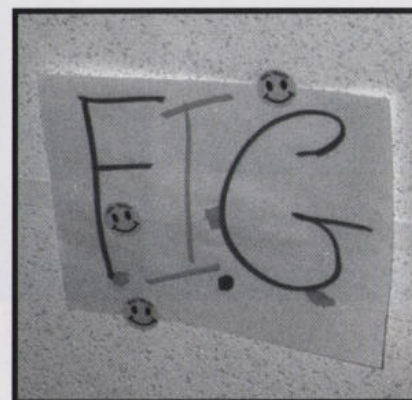

...the Huddy System! Senior Christin Sciulli and junior Brent Herring share a loving embrace. The G.A.T.E. room must be a fine setting for romance!

...a great place to learn, be heard, and relax, but it's a great place to do a Spanish assignment, too! Isn't that right,

F. I. G., abbreviation for "Food is Good", a late twentieth-century phrase and movement begun in the G.A.T.E. Plus Club and carried over into regular G.A.T.E. classes; founder Andy "Chuckles" McDermott states that the aim of this organization is to bring more food into the G.A.T.E. room, and member Brent Herring believes in weekly field trips to Wal-Mart. Hopefully, before the end of the year, other classes will subscribe to this neo-classical philosophy!

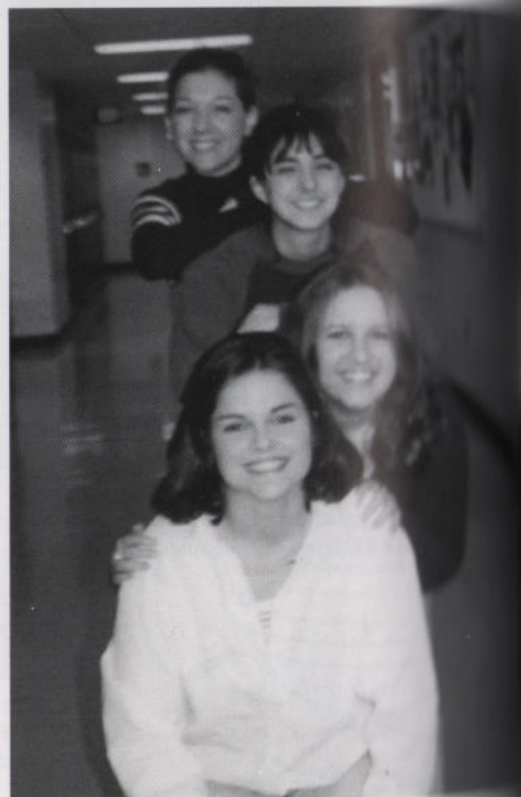

Student Government

Below Right: Student Council (Top to bottom): President Renee Mazzoni, Vice President Liz Veri, Secretary Becky Thielet, Treasurer Jamie McIntosh.

This year, the Student Council, sponsored by Mr. Povlick, and the Senior Class Officers, sponsored by Mr. Torcasi, led the other class officers as the group met with Principal Fred Usher to make some changes for the better. The officers, collectively referred to as Student Congress, set about changing the dress code. Early in the school year, the administration banned sweat pants, swishy pants, and tear-away pants from being worn anywhere except for gym class. The student body was upset, and Student Congress responded. With bi-weekly meetings, the members brainstormed ideas. How could we convince the "powers that be" that there was nothing wrong with the banned articles of clothing? Their reasoning in support of the ban included the fact that the awful acts of school violence committed recently were by individuals dressed in similar garb. Ours against the ban was that sweat pants were inexpensive and comfortable. Through the efforts of Student Congress, led tirelessly by Chris Kelton, the students were, as of February 1, 1999, allowed to wear the banned items once again.

Carlynton

"Imports"

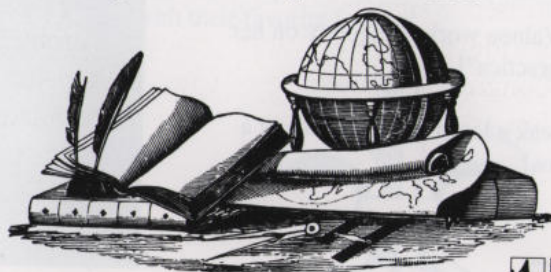

This year, Crafton was lucky to be a second home to three foreign exchange students--Kyoko Takemae (from Nagano, Japan), Wilber Ching (from Costa Rica), and Otto Wattendorff (from Munster, Germany). The three senior high students resided with the Mendenhalls, the Engans, and the Gergeriches, respectively.

It was interesting for these foreigners to spend a year in America because, as Kyoko says, everything in America is "big and cheap," and "people are friendly." Kyoko joined the swim team and elected to take Spanish; "It's easy," she explains. She plans to return to Japan and attend college, but she is undecided on a career.

Wilber, on the other hand, knows just what he wants to be--a lawyer. He plans to return to his native country and go to college. But why did he come to the U. S.? Wilber wanted to learn English, and he thinks this is a "good country". He's not only improving his language skills, but his athletic abilities, too; Wilber has been an important part of the soccer team, and maybe he'll continue this tradition when he returns home!

As for Otto, he enjoys skateboarding, music, (especially "old-school rap") and basketball. He came to America to "gain new experiences," and he thinks that some of the school and local laws are "too hard." Otto, upon his return to Germany, wants to open a record shop--not to make money, but just to have fun. And if this falls through, Otto wants to go into law.

We want to wish the best of luck to these three students when they return to their homelands, and we hope they never forget the fun they've had here.

Espanol!

¿Que pasa etudiants? Espanol es lo que pasa. El idioma de espanol es divertido y emocionante. Las profesoras - la Senora Puchi, la Senora Kiser, y la Senorita Earls ayudan a hacer el espanol muy agradable. Los estudiantes aprenden gramatica, cultura, y vocabulario. Ellos partici[an en conversaciones, proyectos (como la isla de Puerto Rico) y competencias. ¡Ven a visitarnos y unete con nosotros!

What's happening? Spanish is what's happening. The Spanish language is fun and exciting. The teachers - Mrs. Puchi, Mrs. Kiser, and Ms. Earls help to make Spanish very enjoyable. The studens learn about grammar, culture, and vocabulary. They participate in conversations, projects (like the island of Puerto Rico), and competitions. Come visit and join us!

Francais!

"Bonjour" and "ca va?" are some of the things you hear when you walk into a French class at Carlynton. Eighth-graders get their first taste of French culture, and the seniors struggle set a good example for younger students. Miss Earls joined us this year, and has had a positive influence on us all. Mademoiselle has a unique way of getting her students involved with and interested in the French language and culture. New experiences have included learning about the French Revolution (and the guillotine!) and crepe parties! Hopefully, Miss Earls will continue to bring "joie de vivre" to the French Department for years to come!

Peer Helpers in Action

Have you ever crossed a Peanut Butter Pit, walked the Mohawk Walk, or hung thirty feet in the air? These are just a few activities the Peer Helpers experience in training every year. Through this training we learned to work as one in order to solve difficult problems. We also learned to trust one another and grow as individuals. Among these death-defying daredevil stunts we also do a myriad of other activities. Sexual Harassment training for junior high students was a first this year. This program was created to raise awareness of the problems of sexual harassment in secondary schools.

BABES (Beginning Alcohol Basics Education Systems) is a puppet show designed to teach kindergarten through second grades about drug and alcohol awareness. We performed Red Ribbon Week assemblies at both elementary schools, which incorporated the BABES program. On a daily basis the Peer Helpers tutor and mediate, but most importantly, the Peer Helpers provide a shoulder to lean on and an ear to listen.

Mary Esch, Katie Meacci, Tara Wilmus, and Adam Mittner are anxious to leave for their Peer Helper weekend.

Look! It's "hands across the wilderness!" No, it's the Peer Helpers walking a thin line to show us they know how to collaborate.

Christina Torchia and Sarah Mondine realize how good it feels to accomplish their goals as a team.

The Peer Helpers demonstrate their ability to communicate with one another and their willingness to cooperate. In this exercise, they learn to move as one.

Jen Falcioni, Chris Schepis, and Tyler Valentine have hit the books in the art room to research various cultural artwork. They'll use the styles and themes they find to create clay masks.

Art

Art is an expression of imagination and creativity. This has always been shown in the art program at Carlynton High School. Many students are in the art program at CHS. In the elementary grades, students are required to take an art class. Once in high school, CHS students can choose to take art. This is where we find the most talented and creative art students.

We were disappointed to find that all of the art programs were cut in half. So we started a full year course, and a semester course. That way we can keep art teachers, Mr. Muraco and Ms. Schwilm, and keep these students to their creative, innovative art programs. While we were denied the full year course, art will always be a favorite among Carlynton students.

Clay Kachina dolls created by eighth graders line Mr. Muraco's and Ms. Schwilm's shelves.

Angela Loerlein isn't afraid to get her hands dirty as she turns a lump of clay into a piece of pottery on the wheel.

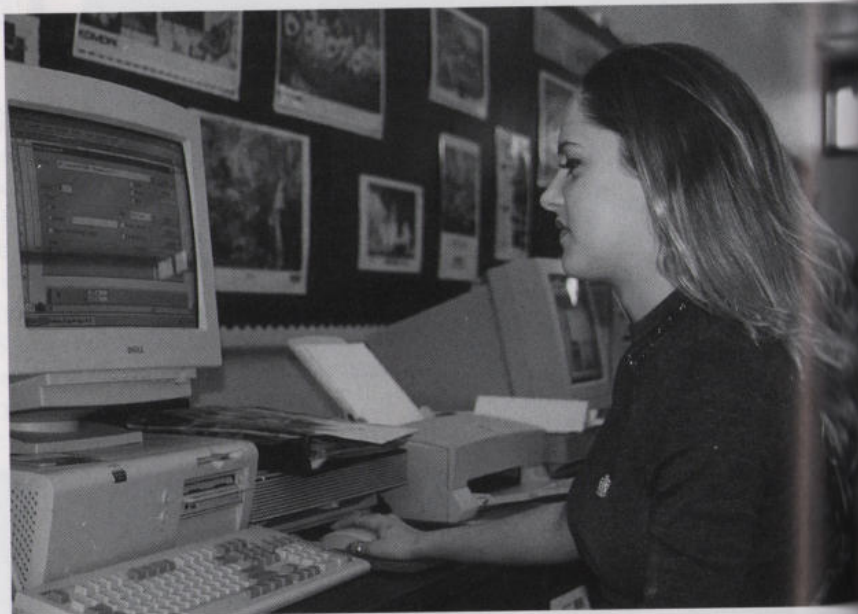

Parkway Vo-Tech

A lot can be gained during three years at Parkway. You learn new things, meet a lot of new people, and you find more rules to break when you're here. It also offers relief from being stuck at Carlynton all day long. For people like me (who feel they'd rather bungee-jump from a 50-foot bridge that sit in class all day long), Parkway is ideal. You study one area for three hours, and it's something you choose to learn.

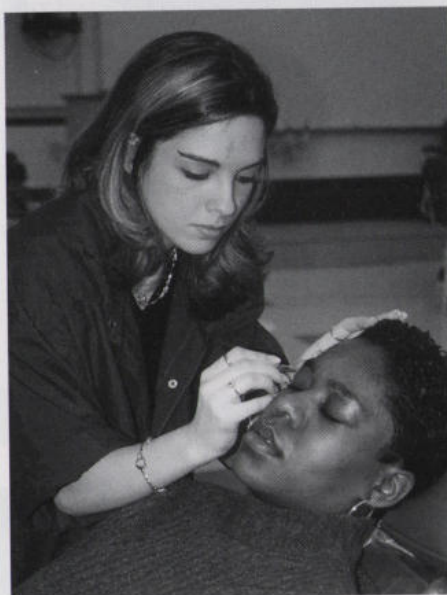

The coolest thing is that you get to become really good friends with people you otherwise would never have met. Another thing is that time at Parkway is worth more high school credits than regular courses, as well as college credits in most program areas. Parkway is all right, but we'll be glad to get outta here!

VIDEO

Josh D'Loss, Tim Bonner, and Mark Malizio have fun while learning about today's advancing technology.

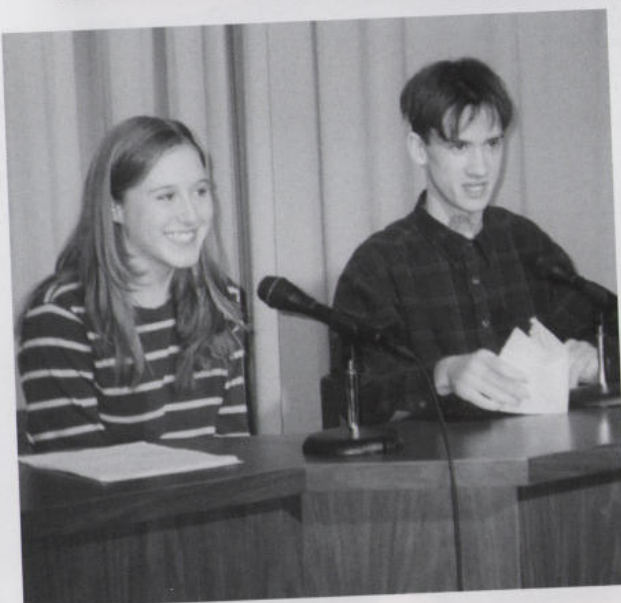

Lights! Camera! Action! This year in video the students had the opportunity to do many fun and exciting projects. Everyone learned how to operate the cameras and equipment and how our successful morning announcements are done. From putting pictures and music together to making slide shows, to public service announcements, to a weekly variety show, these students did everything. Mr. McAdoo taught all of the technical details about lighting and audio. Look for these people to be the producers, directors, and television personalities of the future.

"You gotta put this in!"

A kid we've known for a mere two weeks jogs up to us in the halls and shoves picture under our noses. It's a snapshot of him, his four buddies, and their party at a friend's house. We take the photo. "We'll see what we can do," we say.

Being on the yearbook staff is tough work. Being cooped up in a chaotic little room 'til 5:30 every night, being at school on weekends, saving all our aluminum cans, and listening to people complain about how they don't want their pictures taken are just a few of the drudgeries we yearbook ladies must face. Kim loves to burp; Becky takes way too many butt pictures; Christin can't crop pictures; Mandy has the weird-est little rules...

However, there are a few perks to the job --free food, cafeteria Zamboni privileges, after-school eavesdropping, and we get to look over everyone's most embarrassing baby pictures. Phil McCracken is our morale officer and personal masseur, and while we could've had a lot more help with the layouts and captions, we do have some great staff members who are practically at our beck and call. Not to mention, we can survive on a diet of nothing but Doritos and Nestea. We can put up with each other for weeks at a time. It's definitely been rough, but we have some great memories, and while we apologize for not being able to put everyone's pictures, quotes and articles into this book, we've done our best. Special thanks go to Liz Veri and Shawn Columbus for the quotes, Julia Herrmann for the multitudes of cute and strange pictures, to Mrs. Herrmann, Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Torchia, and especially to Mrs. Lee, our coordinator, for their endless efforts, and to everyone for the memories.

Marching Band

The 1998-99 Carlynton Golden Cougar Marching Band has grown to include ninety-seven members in grades seven through twelve. They began their season with two intense weeks of band camp at the high school. With sixty-seven musicians, sixteen cougarettes, eight silks, three honor guards, and three band managers, it promised a successful season. The halftime show, featuring "Star Wars," "Raiders of the Lost Ark," "The Wiz," and "Rocky," was enjoyed by all at football games and band festivals. This year's band festival featured the traditional fireworks and the return of paratroopers after a long absence. In addition to every game, the band performed at Kennywood, Pittsburgh Labor Day Parade, Carnegie Days, various band festivals, and pep rallies. The highlight of their year was a well-deserved trip to Walt Disney World, Florida. Band members sold hoagies, pizza, candy, and anything else you can think of to get there. This educational and fun-filled trip was enjoyed by all.

The band has been such a huge success, not only because of all the talented students, but also because of the wonderful support of many adults. Director Russ Pedersen, assistant director Vince Ferro, instructors, sponsors, and band parents have worked together to ensure a successful, exciting, and productive year.

COUGARETTES

This band season brought many new twists for the sixteen Cougarettes, led spiritedly by senior captains Amanda Danhires and Cari Dombrowski. This year, the Cougarettes were introduced to the art of pole dancing and sword twirling. We've also joined the Silks in "Star Wars" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark." The Cougarettes also enjoyed their feature dance, "The Wiz," choreographed by Kristie Shulsky. Many thanks to Coach Shulsky and Mrs. Ferro, our sponsor, for their constant support, dedication, and encouragement. The Cougarettes would like to wish the best of luck to our eight graduating seniors: Angie Burkhardt, Amanda Danhires, Cari Dombrowski, Quinn Mangis, Gina Nemetz, Nicole Reinhart, Jen Shields, and Amanda Werkstein.

SILKS

You have seen us here and there. We perform for football games, parades, and at pep rallies. We are the Silks. We are eight of the finest, most dedicated young women. This year's squad consists of five Juniors and three seniors; Kathy Tokarczyk, Heather Waugh, and captain Kami Huhn. Each week we practice for a few hours. Although practices can be demanding, we're always glad to show our school spirit.

CONCERT BAND

This year brought with it a couple of changes to the Carlynton Concert Band program. Junior high and senior concert band classes were held in different periods. The junior high band members have homeroom in the band room and stay for their concert band class first period. The senior high band still meets eighth period with the majority of the band scheduled for class five days a week. Once a student is in the senior high band, they must be in both the concert and the marching band. This group develops into a "family" because they spend so much time with each other. This year a fabulous winter concert was put on by the junior high and senior bands. This concert not only included traditional holiday songs, but other selections as well. The elementary students at both schools were in for a special treat when both bands traveled to the schools to perform their concerts. These groups continued to extend their musical horizons after the holidays, preparing for an exciting spring concert. Congratulations to Justin Zinger, Rachel Zinger, and Phil Norbeck for being selected to participate in the Senior High District Band Festival. A special congratulations to Justin Zinger for advancing to Region Band. Anastasya Julia, Jamey Stewart, and Lewis Stolburg were selected to participate in the Junior High District Band Festival. Anastasya Julia was also selected to participate in the Kent State Honors Band. Many other band members were selected to participate in WACA Honors Band. Congratulations to all on a job well done!

-Rachel Zinger

Junior Josh Storey puts his heart and soul into the music as he plays his sax.

Jill Stelzner, Giovanna DiFiore, and Kara Volk support the Carlynton Band's Brass section.

Aspiring musicians, Justin Zinger and Nick Shoen practice their scales.

Girls' Ensemble

These girls are warming up before their Christmas performance.

This year's 54 member-strong Girls' Ensemble has definitely met the challenges and exceeded the expectations of director Mrs. Mary Lear. This audition-only group has continued to woo audiences throughout the year, not only at their Carlynton concerts, but during community performances as well. Our year began when we made a special appearance at Representative John Pippy's Senior Citizen Bash. Through the hard work and dedication of both the students and Mrs. Lear, a November concert was held instead of the usual holiday concert in December. As soon as the concert was over, the Girls' Ensemble immediately began working on Christmas music in order to have enough music to perform at various locations throughout the holiday season. These locations included Carnegie Light-Up Night, the Pittsburgh Airport, Station Square, and Grand Concourse. The Girls' Ensemble's music would not be complete without their fabulous accompanist, Mrs. Sandy Caine. A special thanks goes out to Justin Zinger, the luckiest page turner around. In the spring, the Girls' Ensemble once again held a spectacular concert. This group of talented young ladies continues to impress its listeners each year.

-Rachel Zinger

Left: "Do you hear what I hear...?" The Girls' Ensemble delights audiences at Pittsburgh International Airport with selections of Christmas songs.

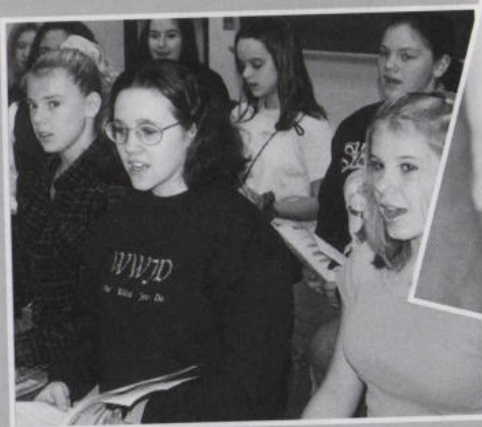

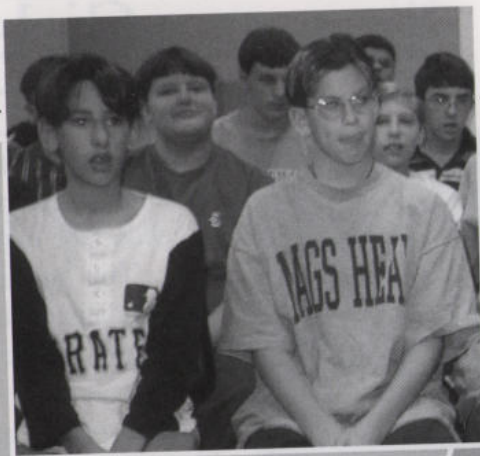

...Humbrowski, Kami Huhn, Kristi McGrogan, and Nicole Reinhart sing their song while Mrs. Lear plunks out the melody.

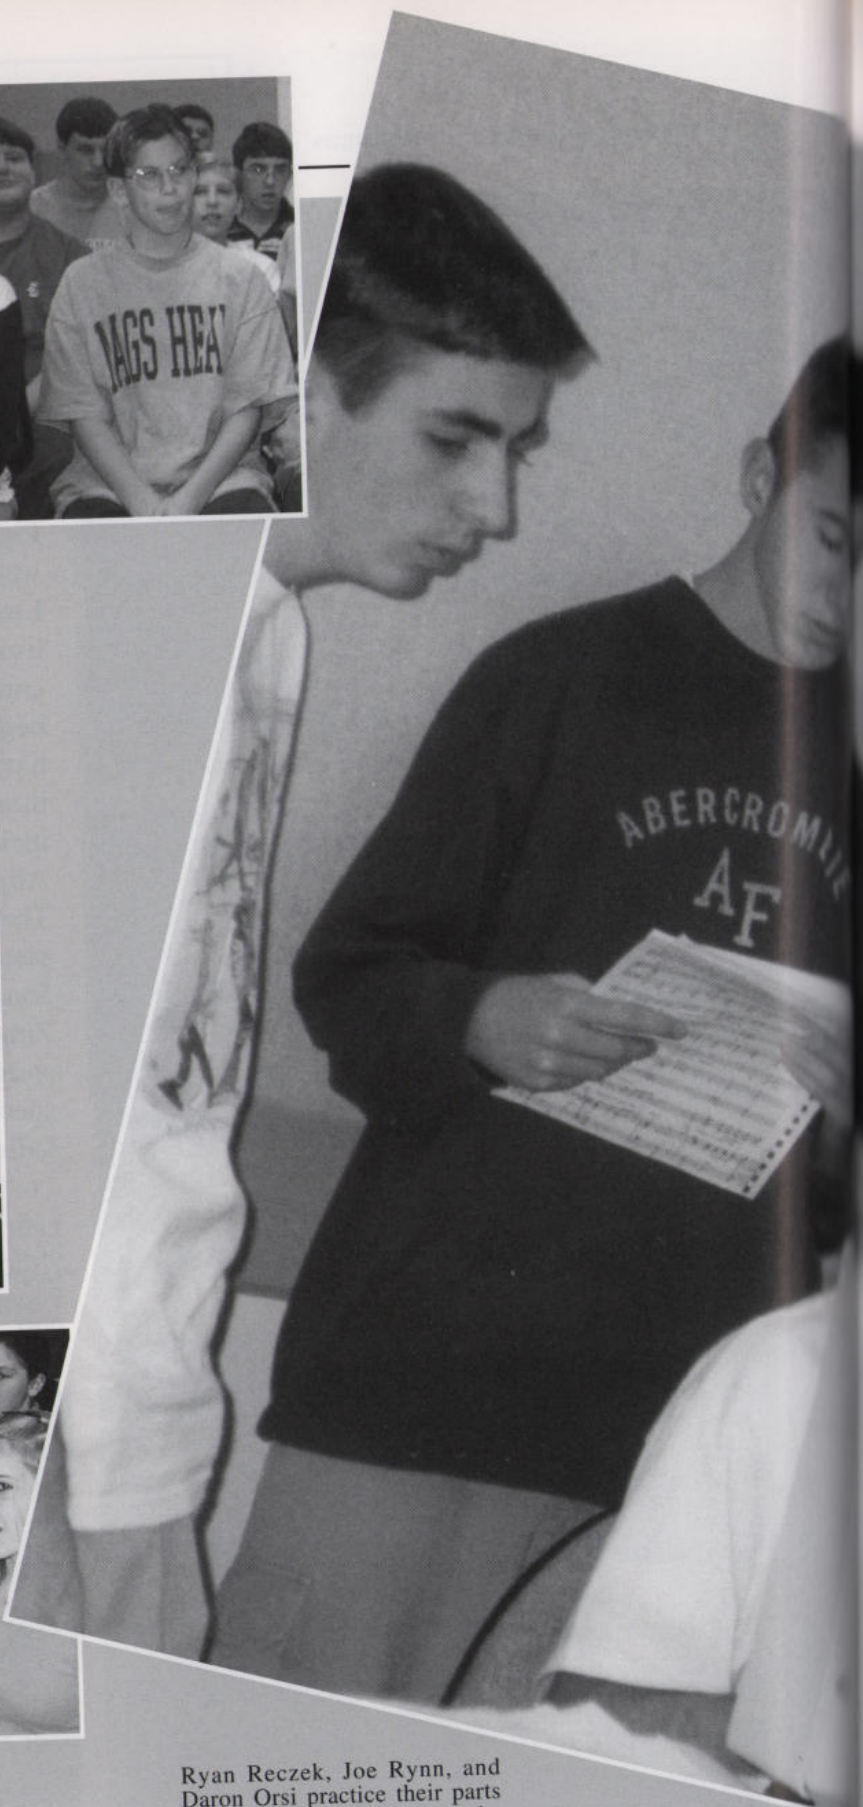

Sophomore Tabitha Caine performs a lovely rendition of "O Holy Night."

Jesse Connor, Mike Narr, and Nathan Barie practice their harmonizing for the upcoming choral concert.

Mrs. Lear coaches her chorus students, "Here are your pitches altos, seconds, and sopranos."

Becky Penatzer, Jeanette Arthur, Denise Konrad and practice singing alto instead of their normal second soprano parts.

Ryan Reczek, Joe Rynn, and Daron Orsi practice their parts while Justin Zinger plays out the notes on Mrs. Lear's piano.

Chorus

The high school chorus did something different this year. Instead of a Christmas Concert, they had a fall concert in November titled "Sing Me A Plain Old Simple Song," featuring all 101 chorus members and a few featured soloists. Under the direction of Mrs. Mary Lear, the chorus classes meet between two and four times a week. At the spring concert the chorus will be performing songs from all the musicals that were ever performed at Carlynton. Chorus is a lot of fun and if you're not in it, join! You'll love Mrs. Lear.

Carlynton's Drama Department Proudly Presents. . .

"Solos"

The decision to perform "Solos," a show written by Pittsburgh native Sam Hazo, was made by director Rob James. Hardly new to the Carlynton stage, Mr. James has been a major part of past CHS musicals, as well as a director and actor with Carnegie's Stage 62 theater company.

The play is a collection of interrelated monologues and was unusual in that the audience sat onstage with the actors, and a wait-staff of six students served pretzels and popcorn, creating a sort of dinner theater/bohemian cafe atmosphere.

The cast, which consisted of six seniors, five juniors, two sophomores, and one freshman, delivered their thoughtful, heart-rending, comical monologues from stools positioned around the audience. While there was no plot to follow, each speech was somehow related to another one during the performance, and it was up to the audience to figure out the relationships. The actors were lucky enough to have the show's writer attend. Though it caused a little nervousness among the actors, it was ultimately a boost to the cast's morale.

Though, in performing "Solos," the CHS drama department broke with the traditional high school comedy, it was a success for both the actors and the audience. A number of the show's admirers let the director and cast know that it was an enjoyable and thought-provoking experience. And that's exactly what drama is supposed to be.

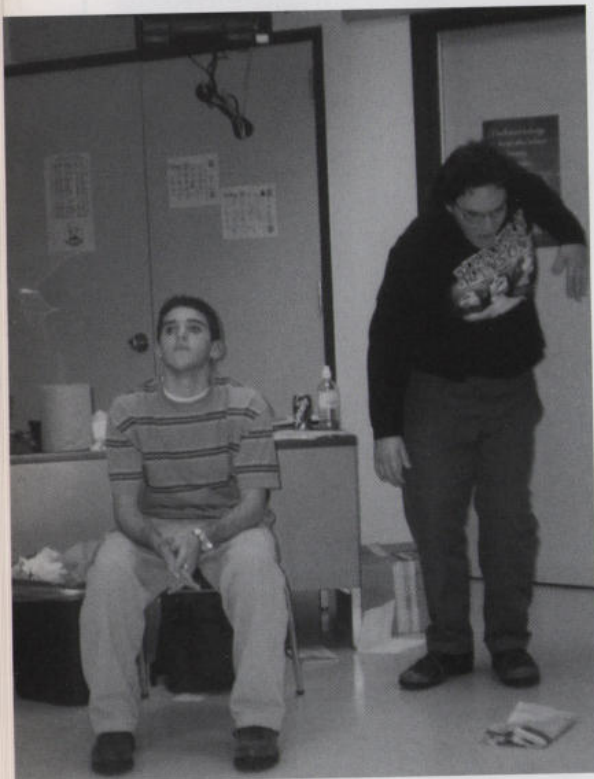

-Becky Thielet

"The cast was fabulous. Rob James did an excellent job with his direction, and you gotta love Justin, Ryan, and Jason!"

-Christin Sciulli

"Oh, oh, oh! I have a question!" Ryan Reczek politely raises his hand to ask about a direction. Justin Zinger seems ready to answer, Ryan! Maybe you should talk to Justin Zinger spends a quiet moment pondering his character's "motivation," while Mike Kolence performs a little jig for the rest of the cast. Both boys are good actors, and they've been a great asset to Carlynton's drama department.

Jason Padula and Bridget Herrmann give each other a quick hug to get rid of some pre-show jitters.

Michelle Reinhart is crowned in a heavenly spotlight as she tells her audience she knows that she has the audience in the palm of her hand.

Staff member Eugene Conniff, caught in a serious moment, wonders how well the show will do on opening night. As a sophomore, Eugene still has a few more years left to devote to CHS shows.

Lighting crew members Dan Chess, Jamey Stewart, Brian McMahon, and Gary Janchenko read over scripts, perform sound checks, and help to ensure a smoothly run show.

Apparently, the play is hard work! A few cast members take a break and get a lift from some friends. Do we see some role reversal going on, Mary and Daron?

A group of junior high kids prepare to race out of school. Just wait for the bell, guys!

It's About Time!

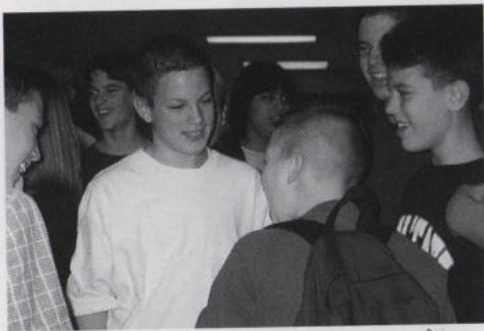

So we've reached the end of another day. And, whenever 2:07 rolls around, we're out of our desks and onto our buses (or into our cars) just as fast as our legs can take us. As soon as we're home, it's time to RELAX. That is, if we're not staying after school to work on the yearbook, practice a sport, or rehearse a dance number!

Rest assured, though, some day, we'll have our way. We'll be our own people, and we'll know that the future belongs to us!

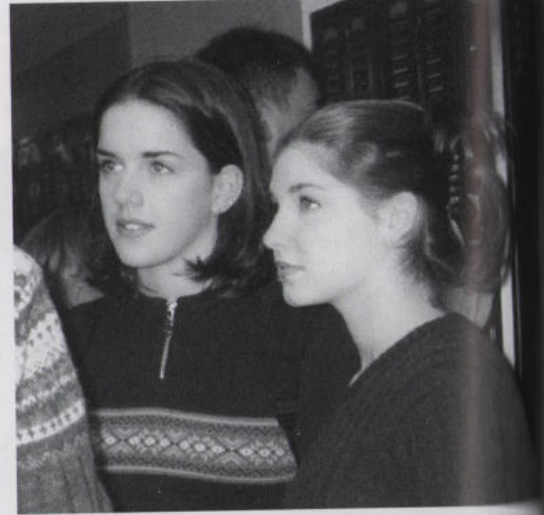

Sophomore Tim Sarver surveys his bus with a watchful eye. Don't let anyone misbehave, Tim!

Can't you see the anticipation on Erin Nelson and Kim Whitaker's faces? They must have great after-school plans too!

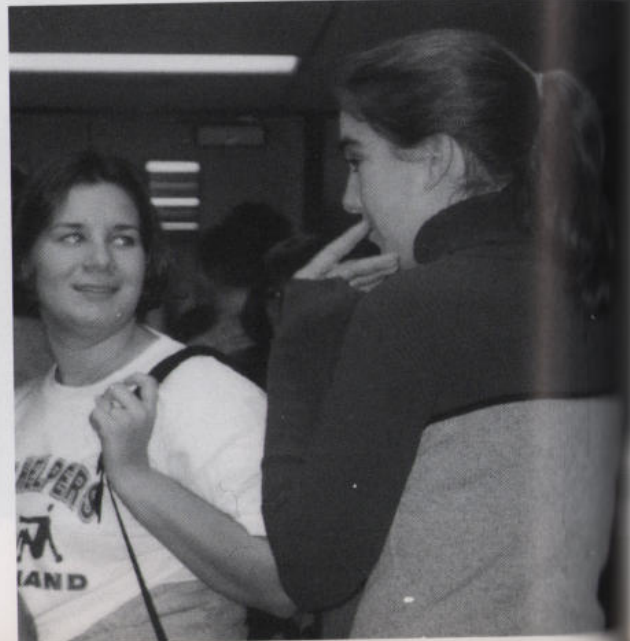

Some junior high guys spare a moment for a friendly chat before they go to their lockers.

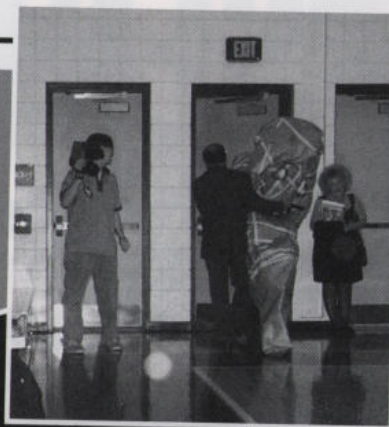

Nicole Reinhart whips out her jacket, ready for a few after-school adventures. Have fun, Nicki!

I Will Remember You
Performed by Sarah MacLachlan

I will remember you
Will you remember me?
Don't let your life pass you by,
Weep not for the memories.

Remember the good times that we had,
I let them slip away from us when things got bad.
Clearly I first saw you smiling in the sun,
I want to feel your arms around me
I want to be the one.

I will remember you
Will you remember me?
Don't let your life pass you by,
Weep not for the memories.

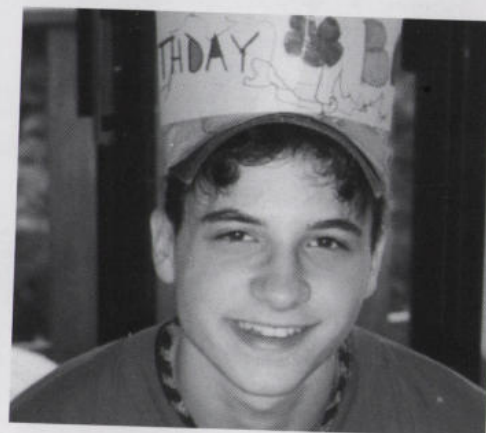

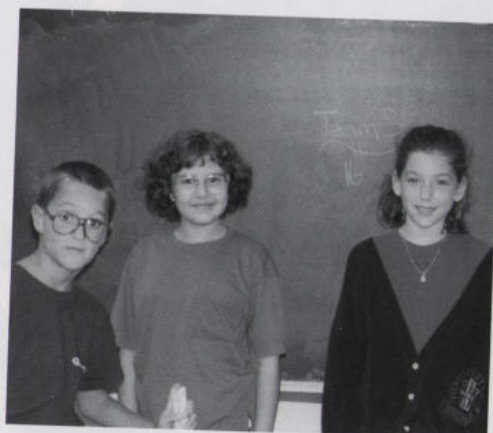

I'm so tired that I can't sleep,
I'm standing on the edge of something much too deep.
It's funny how we feel so much though we cannot say a word.
We are screaming inside, but we can't be heard.

I will remember you
Will you remember me?
Don't let your life pass you by,
Weep not for the memories.

I'm so afraid to love you, I'm more afraid to lose
I'm clinging to a past that doesn't let me choose.
Where once there was a darkness a deep and endless night
You gave me everything you had, oh you gave me life.

And I will remember you
Will you remember me?
Don't let your life pass you by,
Weep not for the memories.

Different Is Good

For the past two years now, senior Mike Kulence has performed in his own "freak show" clev-erly entitled, "The Sodom and Gomorrah Side Show." Mike shares the stage with Carlynton Graduate Nick Wiczorkowski. The two have performed as regulars at Java 13 (now Cafe Au Lait) in the South Side and more recently at Club Laga in Oakland. They have their own tee-shirts (Mike often wears his with pride) and their own web page (<http://members.tripod.com/glassface>) where you can check out pictures of Mike and Nick performing, find out dates and locations of upcoming shows, and find out more about the "Side-show." Be warned, however; this is not a show for the weak of heart, or stomach for that matter. On stage Mike pierces his cheeks, sews his lips shut, breathes fire, and walks across glass. He claims that none of these are very difficult tasks. According to Mike, "You just have to keep practicing until you get it right." For now, don't try this at home.

Ballerina Girl

Since she was a tot, Courtney Bold has dreamt of being a ballerina. She started taking dance classes in 1986 and since then has worked hard to accomplish that goal. She's coming closer and closer every day to living her fantasy-- going to The Ballet Arts College and eventually joining a professional ballet company. Courtney has a very impressive resume. She has danced with the Pittsburgh Ballet Theater, Joffrey in New York City, the Boston Ballet, the Virginia School of the Arts, and the Chautauqua Institute for Dance. Courtney has performed in the Nutcracker, A Midsummer Night's Dream, and The Wilde Year's Gala, her favorite performance, held in honor of Patricia Wilde. Currently, Courtney attends classes at Point Park College where she is receiving both college and high school credits for her Classical Ballet, Modern, and Jazz classes.

Music Men

The Beatles may be more famous, the Rolling Stones richer, and Aerosmith more fashionable, but this band is pretty popular in its own right. Superb is a group formed in August of '97 by senior Jon Durst (lead vocals and guitar), junior Glenn Bell (bass guitar), CHS graduate Nick Tolkacevic (drums), and Jason Glance (vocals and guitar), a senior at Sewickley. They've played at Graffiti, Club Pluto, and certain "parties." Superb opened for the popular Pittsburgh band Seventh House and hard alternative group Fuel, and has done numerous charity shows. Says Jon about the band, "We're experimenting with a couple different styles... mainly just alternative, but look to broaden our horizons." With oodles of Carlynton fans and a significant number of groupies from other schools, Superb is guaranteed to last ... until graduation, at least!

Another daVinci?

Sophomore Deana Jirak is extremely creative and talented when it comes to visual arts. She's always in the art rooms at Carlynton, working on project after project. Deana says that she has been interested in art since early childhood. As a young'un, Deana confesses, she never finished any of her artwork. Maybe it was just perfectionism at an early age! These days, Deana is even taking art classes at CMU. During her first semester of class, Deana has been drawing models, painting, and gesture drawing using mixed mediums.

"It's challenging, very challenging," says Deana. She seems to have fun with it despite the difficulty. Deana's even considering going to Carnegie Mellon after high school to become a graphic or commercial artist or working in design. With two more years left to work on her portfolio, Deana is on a roll!

Talking to the Animals

Animal support at Carlynton can be found in the form of sophomore Emily Tokarczyk. Since September, Emily has been volunteering at the Animal Advocates Thrift Store in the West End. She works for the Advocates once every week for a five-hour span. The Animal Advocates help raise money to spay and neuter cats and dogs in order to keep the stray population down. They're also very involved in animal rescue. Her generous donation to both the human and animal communities may count for credit in Carlynton's Interact Club, but Emily says she's just "glad to be able to help out."

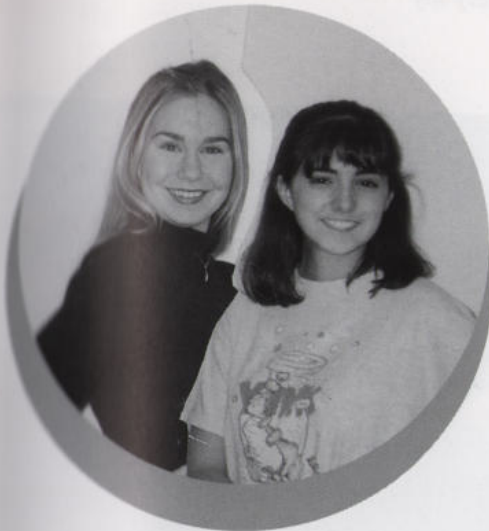

Taking to the Skies

What's it like to graduate with a group of kids you've had to play second fiddle to for as long as you can remember? Liz Restauri is ready to find out. As a former member of the class of 2000, she's taking, among other things, two gym classes, Spanish III, Physics, Chemistry, and Pre-A.P. English in order to meet Carlynton's graduation requirements, and she'll go to Pitt this summer for one more English credit. Why? Liz's sister has already graduated, and her mother wants to go to Europe, so this arrangement seems to be the most convenient for everyone involved. Liz works hard to raise money for the class of '99 and is allowed to participate in certain senior-oriented events. It's a little awkward for her, though. Where, for example, does she sit during a pep rally? With her friends, or with her class? This is just one of the dilemmas Liz faces as an early graduate. But she'll just have to do her best. After high school, Liz wants to be a pilot, and plans to further her education at Embry-Riddle, an aeronautical school in Arizona.

Cheerleaders

Seniors Amanda Danhires and Liz Veri are proud to have contributed their high school years to Carlynton's cheerleading squad. This year they are both helping lead their squad as captains. This past summer, three Carlynton students were chosen to perform in Florida's Orange Bowl on January 1, 1999. These lucky girls were Amanda Danhires, Suzie Impavido, and Liz Veri. They were selected at their summer cheerleading camp at Pitt's Greensburg campus. The offer was given to five students from two different schools, based on spirit and talent. Congratulations, girls, for being chosen to perform in the Orange Bowl! You deserve it!

The Lad in Plaid

Chris Kelton has numerous callings in life: leading the class of '99, serving and protecting as a boy scout, and now, bagpipe king. Yes, it's true. Our favorite senior has been taking lessons for that oh-so-unsettling Scottish instrument for about two years, and he's doing pretty well. And need we mention that charming plaid kilt? Chris' teacher is George Balderose, who is known for his calliope music. Chris lists another teacher, Mike Cusak, as a major influence. When asked why he made such an unusual move and learned to play the bagpipes, Chris replied, "I've wanted to play since I was eight. And when the opportunity arose, . . ." The rest is Carlynton history.

The Few, the Proud, the Eagle Scouts

When you're an 18-year-old Boy Scout, you get razed a lot. Just ask senior Nathaniel Stelzner. Nate has endured both the taunts and the labor of being a Boy Scout since the fifth grade, and is now going for the title of "Eagle Scout." It takes a lot of work to become an Eagle Scout. The extensive criteria include thirty hours of community service and twenty-two badges, such as safety, first aid, communications, family, life, and citizenship-in-the-world badges. Yes, it is a lot of hard work, but Nate is almost there - he has four badges left on his way to becoming an Eagle Scout. Once Nate achieves this honor he'll be eligible for various college scholarships. This is a title that denotes leadership skills and perseverance, two qualities that colleges look for. Nate seems to have a bright and active future ahead of him.

Could this be a tornado alert? Rebecca Meredith, Dawn Aston, Melissa Fennell, and their very shy friend huddle in a hallway.

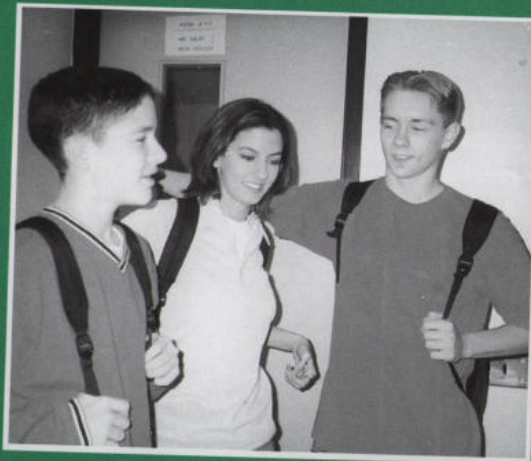

This Senior group takes a break from a heavy study hall workload. Shouldn't you guys be reading Ishmael?

People: Time of Our Lives

It's a quarter after six. You come home from your job--working as a cashier at the Carnegie equivalent of a Kwik-E Mart--and toss your bag on the counter. You pull out your book and flip to page 230. Ah, polynomials! Mr. Gearing was in a great mood, but that nasty kid in the back of the room had to go and make him mad, and you have more problems to do than you've ever had before. Oh, and you remember that Mom wants the laundry done before dinner, you have a basketball game tomorrow, the yearbook staff has been hounding you for those pictures you promised to take, and you're dog-tired. Welcome to the wonderful world of Carlynton! Between sports, homework, and extra-curricular activities, students rarely find a minute to catch their breath. Still, if there's one lesson to learn from your years at high school, it's that you've got to find time to laugh.

Eighth grader Jessica Lang was taken off guard by a yearbook shutterbug. She only has three minutes to get to class. Put that camera away!

Jason Padula, Kristen Burns, and Casey Norbeck chat on their way down the hallway. As juniors they have a lot to talk about.

"Hold me, Jon!" Taking a break from being manly, Andy Schulz is carried away by friend and macho-grunge-boy Jon Durst. Where are they off to?

Reverting back to their fun and exciting childhoods, Phil McCracken and Chris Kelton play a game of patty-cake.

"Good Morning!" Friends Naureen Raja and Nicole Reinhart greet each other to start another busy day.

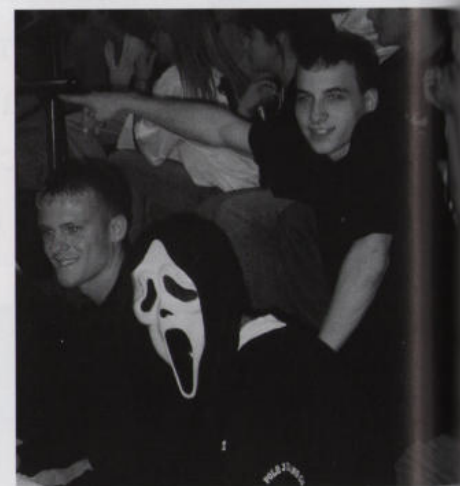

Calm down, Mindy Kruhm! We know that you love English class, but this is nuts!

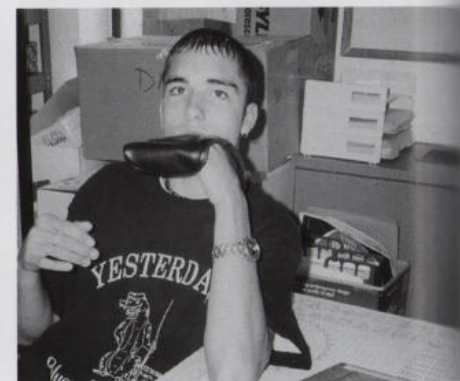

Heather Waugh is quick to show off her love of Carlynton with a bright but confused expression.

Isn't it a little early for Halloween? Feeling a little scary, senior Jesse Barbour dons a mask at a pep rally. And what is Jim Kovanis pointing at? Your guess is as good as mine.

As he munches on a glasses case, Joe Cyprow contemplates the mystical wonders of Geometry.

As children of the eighties, we grew up with ripped sweatshirts, "Punky Brewster," Smurfs, and high-tops. Our heroes were the gang in "The Breakfast Club." We wanted to be Tiffany and
 The New Kids on the Block.

When we moved on to seventh grade, we learned that high school was intimidating, and so many things changed our views on life. We were trampled by seniors, pitied by freshmen, and laughed at by eighth-graders, but we survived. We were one of the last groups of kids to have real respect for our elders- especially the seniors. Painfully, the next two years dragged by, and we consoled ourselves with Beverly Hills, 90210 (people's lives are always worse on TV) and the dreams of graduating. In ninth grade, we were officially high-schoolers.
 There was no turning back and there was not always time for Spin Doctors concerts and trips to the mall. Grades were what counted, not the latest edition of Seventeen. So many new options presented themselves: we could be involved in more classes and sports teams, and the musicals and plays. In tenth and eleventh grade, we tried our best to divide our time between homework and "playtime." Classes became tougher, teachers' expectations higher, and our own standards rose. Mr.

 Herniman frequently met with us during English class (fortunately, no one wanted to read Macbeth anyway!) and we took the PSATs and the SATs, both in preparation for our future. And now, this is it. We're seniors. All the damage has been done: friendships formed, notes written, tests failed, games won,
 and memories made. What we do now will affect this school and its students for years to come. Though we take our routines for granted, we don't realize we're leaving next year until Mrs.
 Petronsky welcomes us to her class with a perky, "Hello, seniors" or Mr.
 Moscovitz calls us down to a special assembly. But it's real. There's no hiding behind fantasies or playing make-believe. This is every high school student's dream, and we're living it. And, no matter what happens, that's the sweetest thing of all.

After the game these senior girls show off their Cougar Pride.

Justin Pangallo, Jon Durst, and Jason Harbin hold Tony Fielder up in what's become his classic pose. Hey guys, no moshing!

Seniors Amanda Palmer
 and Kim Rectenwald strut down the junior hallway.
 Don't mess with 'em boys,
 they're under yearbook-related stress.

Hold On to the Memories

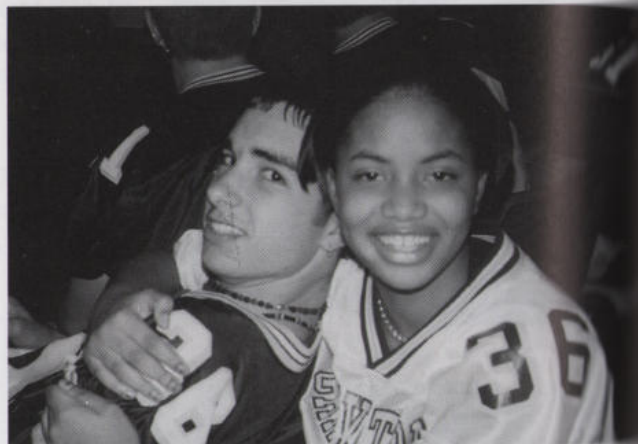

A wise man once said, "High school is the easiest time of your life." You meet friends you think will last a lifetime, but, before you know it, those friends are gone, and high school is over. The years have come and gone by so fast. It seems like only yesterday, we were freshmen beginning a journey that at the time seemed to have no end. Now we are finally seniors completing that same journey. Many of us have gotten bumps and bruises along the way. Nevertheless, the last four years have been something we will never forget. Before we know it, the homework, football games, and dances will be over. The friends we've had since elementary school will be gone. We will all venture our separate ways, ending a major chapter in our lives. Yet another one awaits us. It is up to each individual person to decide how their chapter will read. Most likely, it will be as long if not longer than the first. However, it will also be filled with many great memories, but they can never replace the ones made in high school.

I have grown close to so many of you, and come graduation, it's going to be so hard to say good-bye. When I'm in college surrounded by new people and places, I'll always think back to the fun times I had with you.

Good luck to every one in all that you do. I hope that you accomplish your dreams and goals. I'll miss you all very much.

-Erica Baughman

Joe Cyprowski gets a hug from lovely lady Stephanie Powell. You guys look great in those jerseys!

Chris Kelton just can't wait for graduation! The class president shows off the new robes at a Student Council meeting.

In a moving experience, the seniors bond as their song is played over the loudspeakers.

Senior Poem

Balanced on the edge of time,
And dancing with disaster,
We are seniors in our prime,
Approaching the end faster
Than anyone dared to dream.
Now, with tomorrow in view,
Things can't be as they seem.
I don't want to say "I'll miss you."

Don't think now of vague wishes,
Wistful congratulations,
Smiles, handshakes, hugs, and kisses.

Save those for graduation.
Please take this one last year
And come together as friends.
No time for regrets and tears;
This is our time to make amends.

Look back on the memories
Of our years and yesterday;
Like green and gold confetti,
Never throw them all away.
Collect them up and save them;
Hide them away in your hearts.

Remember, this is no end.
It's just a hell of a start.

-Becky Thielet

Biology babes Jamie McIntosh, Jamie Hughes, and Renee Mazzoni take a break from Mr. Valalik's crazy notes and hop onto a lab table, just for fun.

With common goals
And common longings
We laughed, we loved
We played, we won...

Those were our school days
Our happy days
They were real
Because we made them real
They were alive
Because we existed...

As suddenly as they had dawned
They faded into the less carefree days of adulthood
Now they are finally gone
Those happy days in school...

Around the corner
Are the unknown days of tomorrow
Who knows the future they will bring...

-Author Unknown

We, the faculty and staff of Carlynton High School, wish the class of 1999 a prosperous, happy, and fulfilling life.

A group of sexy senior guys just finished their Itza Pizza and gather around for a snuggly yet manly group hug. Jim, why are you sticking your tongue out in almost all the pictures that we have? You crazy kid!

SENIOR MEMORIES: THE LOST YEARS

Dear Junior,

This is it - 1999-2000 takes. After this year, will be your last year together. All familiar faces of the past years will soon be gone. The close friends that have meant so much will no longer be close by. The laughter, fights, and tears will be nothing more than memories.

Allow these last months to bring you all closer together. Put away all the petty grudges and past mis-

When it's all over, these are the things you'll miss the most. Believe it or not, the road to your future is rushing up to meet you. You'll be forced to make decisions that will have an impact on that future. It may seem like you have all the time in the world, but this year will be over before you know it. Your first major decision will be which college to attend or what job to apply for. From there, the responsibilities of being on your own and the real world will present you with challenges and choices that you alone must face.

So, as you begin your final days together, you must unite as a class. As we said before, this is it! You are the end of a century and the beginning of a new one. You are the class of 2000--make count!

Love,
The Senior Class

Everything's A-OK! Senior Chris Kelton and his good buddy, Junior Amanda Stanchak, have a super time at the Homecoming dance.

We've Begun to Bloom

The life of a junior is much like that of a seed in the earth. You push with all of your strength to try to reach the beauty of the sun's rays. Inch by inch, day after day, you strive toward the light. Finally, the day comes when you open your eyes and see the sun smiling down upon you. You feel as though you have achieved a great victory until you realize that there is still much to do before you become a full grown rose and even more time still before you will bloom.

Juniors, you have striven toward the sun, and now her light reaches your leaves. Remember that there is much work to be done before you're fully grown; there is still time left before you bloom.

- Grace Welte

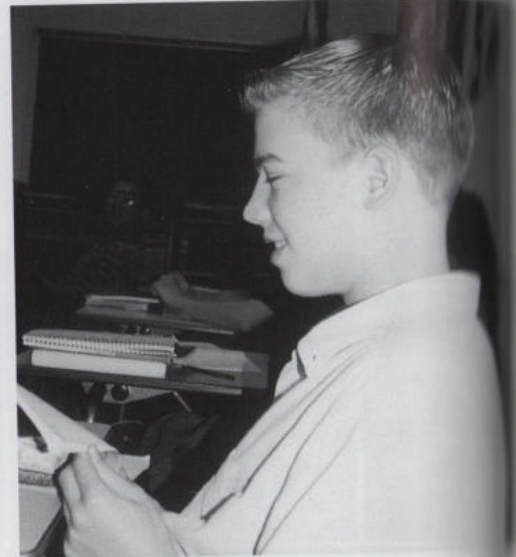

As usual, Brent Herring seems to have all the right answers.

Living in the Here and Now

We are sophomores at last! We only have two more years to go until our release into the real world, but that does not scare the Class of 2001 in the least; we live in the here and now. This year has been spent establishing our proper place in high school. Our lockers are finally downstairs. Attending the Prom and Homecoming are two new options available to us. The divisions between the grades are gradually disappearing. We are part of the Senior High now, and it feels great!

- Deana Jirak

Looking off into space with wild-eyed abandon, Olivia Hipolit ignores her English homework.

Geometry pals Glen Stolburg and Ryan Staley share a laugh about parallel and colinear quadrilaterals.

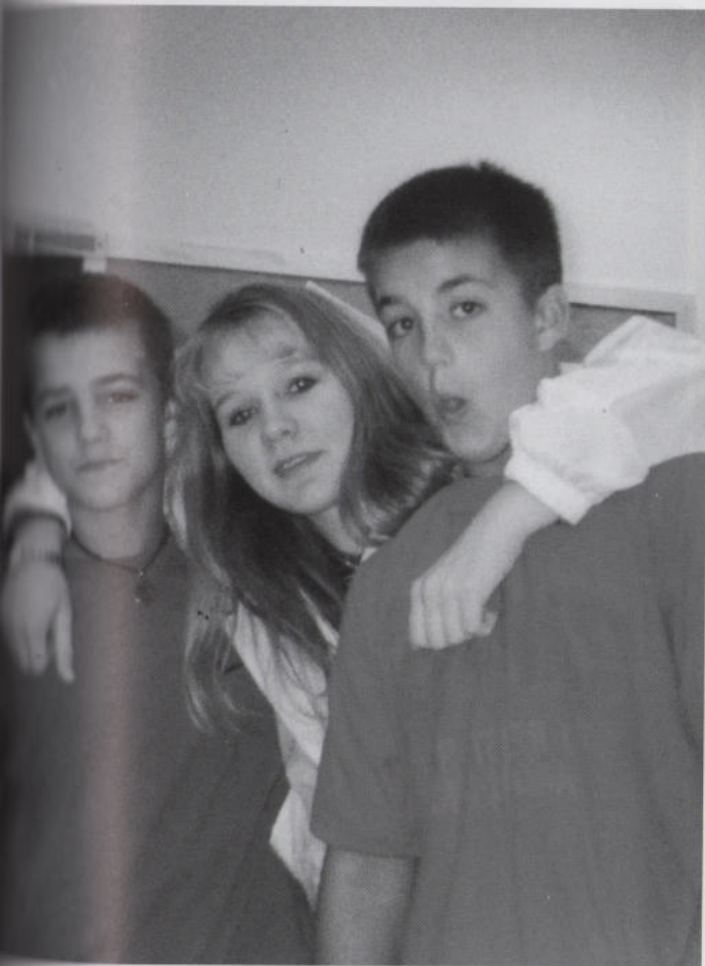

Freshmen: A New Beginning

A group of Chemistry students takes a break from class to remind us of the importance of safety gear. Nice aprons!

Instead of catching up on his Geometry, Chad Kolarcik catches 40 winks. Just be sure Mr. Dalby doesn't catch you!

Steiner is lucky, to have two valentines -- and Josh!

Adam Mittner and Brian McMahon give us their best "mad scientist" impressions. Mr. Cochran better watch out for these two; they look like some up-and-coming Chem majors!

There must be something in the Ultimate Nachos today! Eileen Engan is giggling at lunch again. Next time, just brown bag it!

A Part Of It All

A cluster of eighth-graders clogs up the hallway. Better let those seventh-graders get by.

English class must've been a blast today! A group of freshmen give us a yell. Just remember to do your grammar work, kids!

9th grade is a thrilling new experience for us this year for many different reasons. This year we are eligible to take electives, there are more sports that we can play, and we get our own class favorites. All of the Jr. High dances focus on our grade; we can't wait to see who will be on our Spring Queen court. Now that grades count and we're building up credits for graduation, we're all busy with tons of homework and hours of studying. We don't have to sit on the auxiliary bleachers any more; we're really a part of the high school now. After this -- only 3 more!

-Latrisha Slade & Terri Vincent

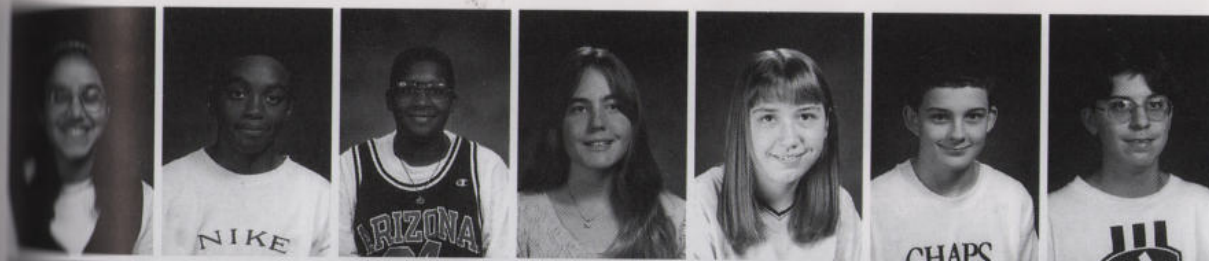

That's a clean locker you got there, Nick Eonta. Andrew Jurczak agrees.

The Best Years of Our Lives

The 1998-1999 eighth grade class is full of eager young adults pushing forward into the best years of our lives. We're not going to let anything like dress codes or I.D. cards get us down. In this day and age, we've learned to do the best we can with what we have. We bright youngsters have our whole lives ahead of us, and we realize it more every day. We are beginning to make plans for the future. We are making independent choices. This is where we mature and begin to discover who we really are.

year is a big step for us, though. In this new school, we are beginning to learn how to cook, perform, swim, type and return library books on time. We are also learning to cope with new schedules and new lockers. We have new teachers and more choices. One final comment: Just remember this when you think about how early you have to get up in the morning -- "Get used to it!"

Hats Off to Education

Education has never been an easy career. Teachers here at Carlynton have been faced with uncooperative students, the occasional spitball, and the ever-present challenge of trying to make learning fun. Fortunately, our teaching staff has passed the test time and time again with flying colors. Our teachers have that rare ability to keep students interested in what's important in life -- like cosines, predicates and symbiosis. And we want to take this opportunity to thank them for their support, enthusiasm and encouragement in all that we students do.

Ole! Mindy Kruhm and Christi Kolarcik thank Senora Puchi for a great party. Senora does her best to mix education with fun for her students.

Students were met with a number of changes in the teaching staff this year. Among those who retired were gym teachers Donna Ripple and math teacher Bill Yost (who has remained with us as an assistant football and wrestling coach). While French students were upset at the departure of Monsieur Domenico Di Bacco, they're welcoming their new language teacher, Madame Earls. Other new additions include gym teacher Miss Hiteshew, special education instructor Dina Yon, math teacher Rebecca Hollein, and secretary Vangie Vayanos. We want to wish the best of luck to these new educators and also to our students, as we know that they will carry on Carlynton's tradition of excellent teaching.

Time Out!

Few things can compare to the atmosphere of a high school football game. The anticipation smells like hot dogs and freshly cut grass. And there's nothing else like the pride of seeing those yellow-clad players pouring onto the field. Cheerleaders perform stunts that everyone else can only imagine. Swimmers and track stars race to break the records, and, of course, each goal made by the soccer teams is just one more reason to wave the Carlynton banner high. With students qualifying for W. P. I. A. L.'s and section finals, as well as a wonderful history of championships, surprising victories, and outstanding athletic achievements, CHS certainly has reason to be proud. Athletes receive the full support of the students, faculty, and staff, and there's reason to believe that they always will.

"SPIRIT CHECK"

What does it mean to be a cheerleader? For the Cougar Cheerleaders, it means a lot of hard work and dedication, but even more fun. The varsity cheerleading squad this year was made up of four seniors, five juniors, and three sophomores, led by captains Lauren Ban, Amanda Danhires, and Liz Veri. With eight new girls, this could have been a difficult year, but by the start of the football season, everyone was working together as a team. At Carlynton, the cheerleaders are not just a squad, they're a family.

Varsity Football

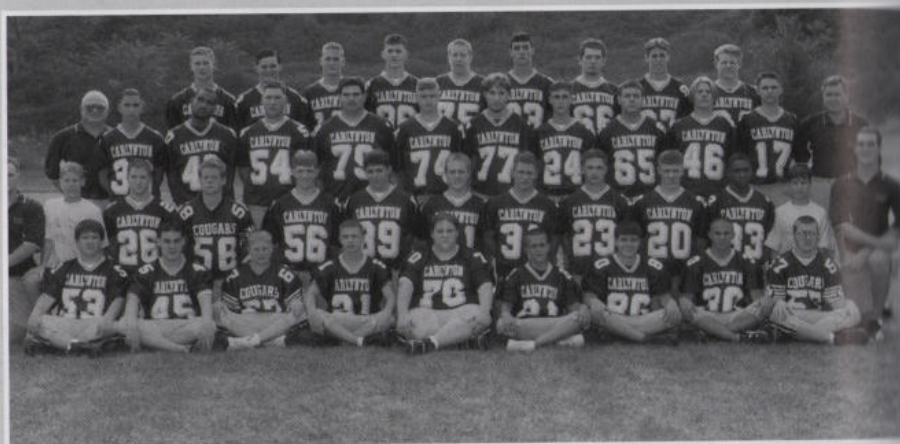

Brandon Davis and Joe Cyprowski take a break from the game and waterboy Jesse Valentine carries his basket, dreaming of someday being a star. Hey, Jesse, if Adam Sandler made it, so can you!

The players and coaches knew they faced a rebuilding season in 1998. Seventeen seniors were on the team, but most were inexperienced. The team proved to be competitive in every game except one. The inability to produce big plays and finish close games resulted in a 2-8 record.

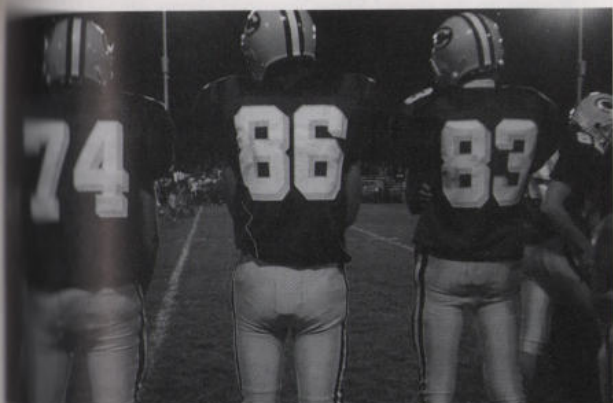

Seniors were an important part of the 1998 team. Team Captains Todd Wilmus, Josh Donovan, and Jeff Scott played well. First-time starters Brad Scott and Stephen Mostella at inside linebacker, and Joe Cyprowski and Jason Tremblay at defensive back, also played well. Young players on special teams showed a lot of potential for next year. Though the 1998 Cougars did not have a winning season, they played with pride and effort.

BOYS' SOCCER

It was another successful season for Carlynton's boys' soccer team. Though we did not make it to the playoffs, we finished third in a tough AA section and proved that we could compete against top WPIAL teams, despite the size difference. What this year's team lacked in size, it made up for with skill. Junior defender Brent Herring and sophomore sweeper Steven Yaworski commanded a strong defense which helped freshman Terry Dlugos adjust to playing Varsity goalie. The strong midfield was led by captain Davor Komljenovic, who often moved back to defense to help out. Junior co-captain Matt Kellams also led the midfield, along with juniors Evan DeRenzo and Ben Skvarca on the outsides, and Chad Kolarcik as the third center mid. Goal-scoring became a problem when the team lost forward Sean McQuillan to an injury, but freshman Andy Skvarca and sophomore Ryan Fingers took the opportunity to show what they could do. Next year's team will have ten returning starters, keeping playoff hopes alive for Coach Gary Weber. -D.K.

Seniors McIntosh, Killmeyer and Kolarcik anchored the strong defense, along with junior Dunmyer and sophomore Steiner. Sophomores Notaro and Sanchas controlled the mid-field, with sophomore Tassaró and junior Fingers. Senior Mangis led the team in scores. Goalies were sophomore Cyprowski and senior Reinhart. The team ended with a 9-6 record, including an overtime win against the No. 1 team, Sewickley.

“Teed” Off

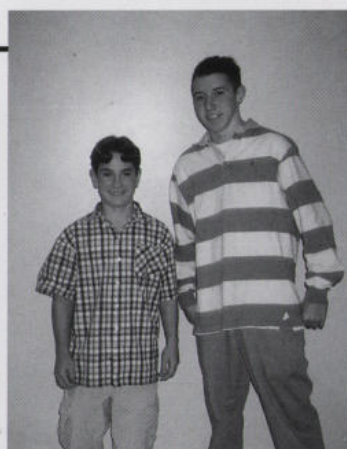

This year's golf team is one to be proud of. Although there may not seem to be much interest in playing golf at Carlynton, our golf team has been excellent for the past few years. This year, the team consists of three seniors, one junior, four sophomores, and one freshman, led by Coach Sonson and their captain, Jason Harbin. With an excellent beginning record, the team was able to close out the season with a 7-5 record. And with so many skilled younger players the team is sure to continue their winning trend for years to come.

What a cute couple! Junior Kristen Burns gives Senior Captain Renee Mazzoni a big hug. Both girls mean a lot to the team.

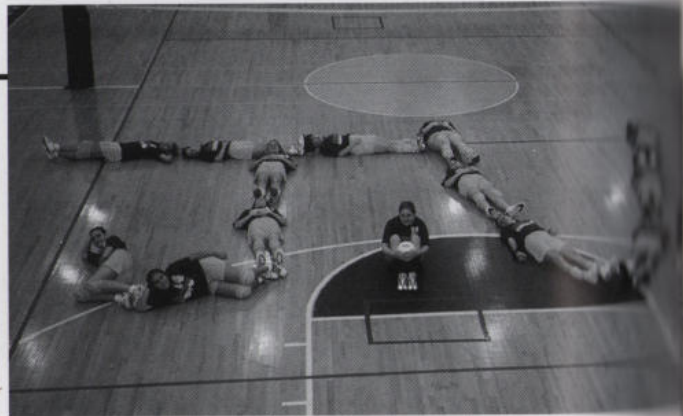

Our Varsity girl's show off their muscles. Be careful guys. . . these girls are buff.

Bump, Set, Spike!

We started out in '94 not knowing what we were getting into. Our goal was to win one match; now as we enter our third season, our skills continue to grow along with our urge to win. Our coaches Mrs. Patsko and Mrs. Berlingeri work hard to get us to believe that we can, indeed, win. Twenty-seven girls in grades 9-12 joined the team this year. Eighteen girls are on the Junior Varsity team, and nine girls make up the Varsity team. Out of the nine Varsity players only one is a senior, Renee Mazzoni. This year has been different for all of us. Now we're running longer, jumping higher, and spiking harder. We are now three years into the game and we're ready to bump, set, spike, and WHI!

Do we have to spell it out for you? Junior Varsity rocks!

The Girls' tennis team has nine players this year, and many will be returning next season. The tennis program has been gradually improving over the last several years. Mr. Vogt is a wonderful coach and he has played a vital role in the team's success. Each of the girls has put a lot of hard work and effort into practices and playing matches. All in all we have had a great team this season.

GIRLS' VARSITY BASKETBALL

This year's team had an absolutely outstanding season! The overall record was 23-7, and the only thing that kept the Lady Cougars from an even better year was their loss to East Allegheny in the final round of the WPIALs. And in the PIAAs, the girls beat Redbank, but lost to Girard in the second round.

Kacy O'Brien, a sophomore, surpassed the 1000-point mark this year and was named the section's Most Valuable Player. Freshman Kristen Bonner set a WPIAL Championship record with seven three-pointers in one game, and she also set a school record with 66 three-pointers in one season. Both girls were named to the All-Section 1st Team, and Tara Wilmus and Jeanine Kossler were named All-Section Honorable Mention.

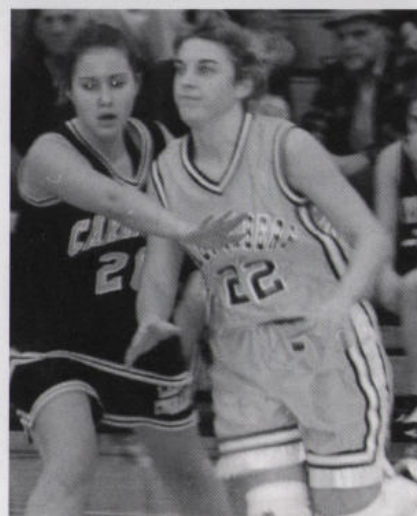

Once again, congratulations on a super year. And because there were no seniors on the team, all of these fabulous girls should be back next year for another unbelievable season!

Even the Lady Nabers stand back to watch Kacy O'Brien score her 1000th point.

And now a word from our sponsor! Jaime Cyprowski and Kacy O'Brien take a time out to develop a new team strategy with Coach McConnell.

There's no way this chick's getting past Jaime Cyprowski.

Varsity and Junior Varsity Boys' Basketball

This basketball season got off to a rocky start. The first section game was a loss to Quaker Valley by over 40 points. Along with our record, this does not show how well we played during the season. We had our big 20 and 30 point victories as well as many section wins. At the home game against Quaker Valley, we played excellently and kept it close all the way through. A few players were lost during the season, but that gave younger players the chance to step up. Although we are losing some talented senior, there will be three returning starters. This valuable experience and some new talent will lead to an even better season next year.

Seventh, Eighth, & Ninth Grade Basketball

The 7th, 8th & 9th grade boys' basketball teams all had reasonably good years. The 7th grade team, under the tutelage of Coach Brian Mickens, and the 9th grade team, with Tim Marshall as coach, both had winning seasons. M. Malizio, D. Moehring & G. Petronsky were 3 of many good 7th stars. A. Bennett, M. Wilmus & M. Schwartzmiller are 3 of the 8th guys who will "take it to another level" next year. The 8th grade team & coach Brian Mickens had a winning season and won second place in the Cornell Tournament. Two of their top players were J. Fiedler & B. Nelson. All players will move up next year with more experience & confidence.

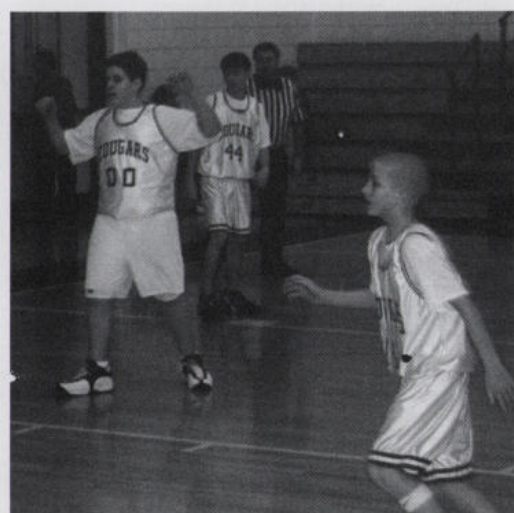

Mike Donovan and his teammate anxiously wait for the play to come down the court.

Wrestling

Despite the fact that this year's records weren't spectacular, there were some shining memorable moments during the season (besides Dan Butera). Jamal Hatcher placed third at 130 lbs. and qualified for the Southwest regional championships. He also placed second at the Burgettstown tournament. And at the Christmas Tournament, Josh Valentine placed third and Brad Scott placed first in their respective weight divisions. The team's sophomores, including Jamal and Josh, will help ensure a more successful season next year and more wins in their future careers.

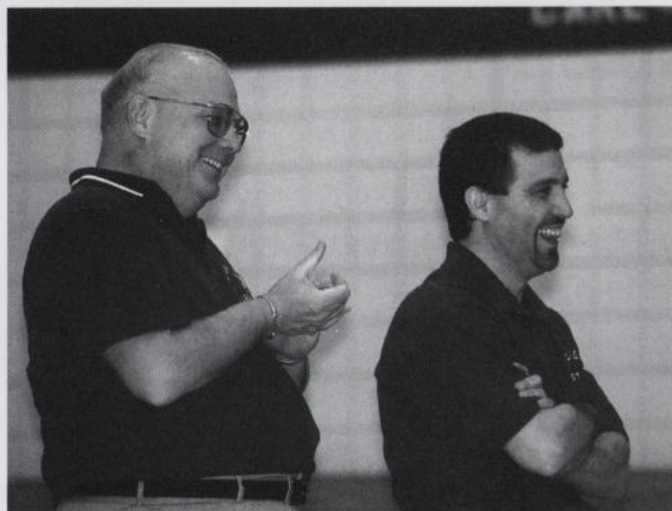

The pain on Jesse Valentine's face is evident as he is pinned by an opponent.

Dan Butera's Record

-119 lbs.

-33-1 for the year

-Placed second in the State Championships in Hershey

-Ended his Carlynton career with a record of 118-19

Selected for both the Dapper Dan Wrestling Classic (which he won) and the National Wrestling Championship Tournament

Won his second consecutive WPIAL District 7 Championship
WAY TO GO, DAN!

Jamal Hatcher displays his physical prowess in a hold. The "other guy" doesn't stand a chance!

SWIMMING

This year has proven once again to be a successful season for Carlynton's boys and girls varsity swim teams. With all relays and a handful of individuals qualifying for the WPIAL's, success was inevitable. The addition of skilled freshman and a few first-time swimmers contributed greatly to an already talented swim team. Despite a few setbacks (Moon entering our section and, of course, shoulder injuries), the Cougars managed to pull through with another winning record. Led by coaches Kristie Shulsky and Mike Schneiderlochner, and captains Nate Stelzner and Patrice Langford, the team practiced hard, and with just a little more work, will surely capture a section title in upcoming years. The diving team, although lacking in numbers, shows a promising future due to the return of Amy Spinnenweber, who once represented Carlynton WPIAL and State Championships. Amy's coaching has been a huge help to the team. Good luck to next year's team Ready to take the plunge? A group of swimmers wait for that all too-familiar starter pistol to give the signal. Then they'll be off!

Celebrating a victory, members of the swim team cuddle in a somewhat squishy hug. As usual, Carlynton's team did very well during the season.

"Do I still have a pulse?" Coach Shulsky tends to B. Dobson. It looks like you're gonna be all right, B. Dobson. We need you on the team!

The amazing Stelzner's (Heather, Ivy, and Jill) take their show on the road. Someday the girls, like their brother Nate, may lead the team.

Swimmers Nick Eonta and Andrew Jurczak take a breather from the toils of laps. Better get back in the pool guys or the Coach Shulsky will be after you!

Front Row: Girls' Co-Captains Patty McGarvey & Missy Bender, Head Coach Kristie Shulsky, Assistant Coach Mike Schneiderlochner, Boys' Co-Captains Joe Matt & Ernest Feeny.
 Second: Sarah Bryan, Courtney Tedford, Leah Bassano, Jillian Lukac, Leanne LaGamba, Elyse Easton, Deanna Bassano, Krista Sunderland, Katie Aston, Jillian Stelzner, Heather Stelzner, and Ivy Stelzner.
 Third: Nick Janchenko, Jason Beadle, Nathan Barie, Jordan Langford, Andrew Rogers, Eric Sheper, Jesse Conner, and John Ricked.

 Third: M. Gordon, M. McGarvey, R. Schirripa, N. Schoen, C. Norbeck, B. Herring, A. McDermott, M. Sweeney, M. Kellams, A. Jurczak, N. Eonta.

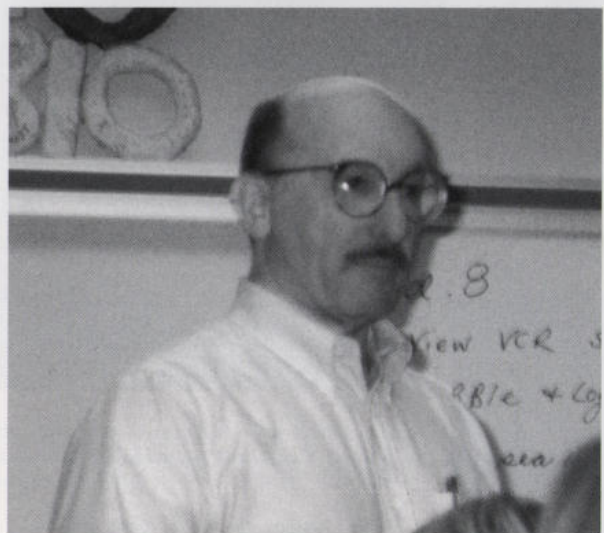

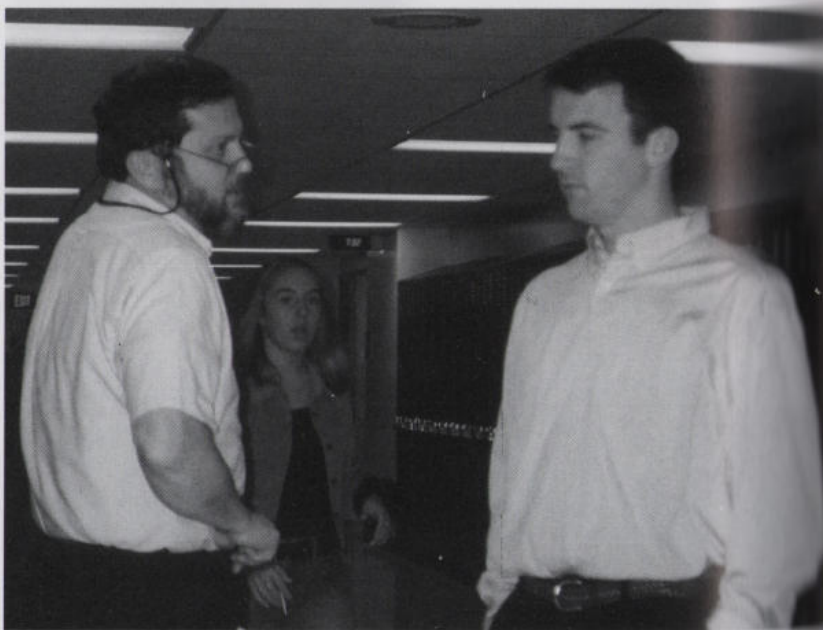

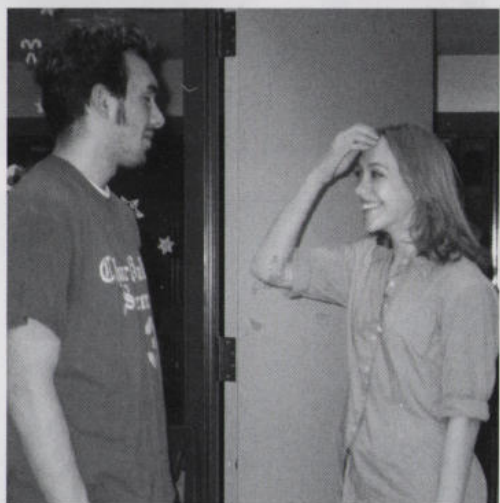

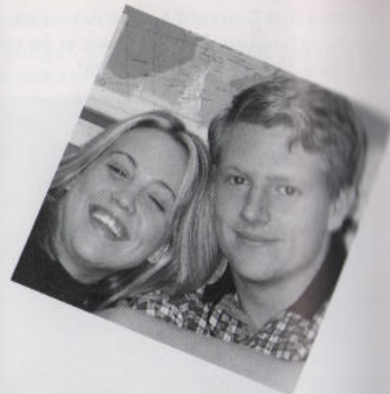

Nate Stelzner and Brent Herring, along with the Masked Lady (could it be Caitlin Green?) ready themselves for another 40 laps. Nate, what's wrong? Swallow too much pool water?

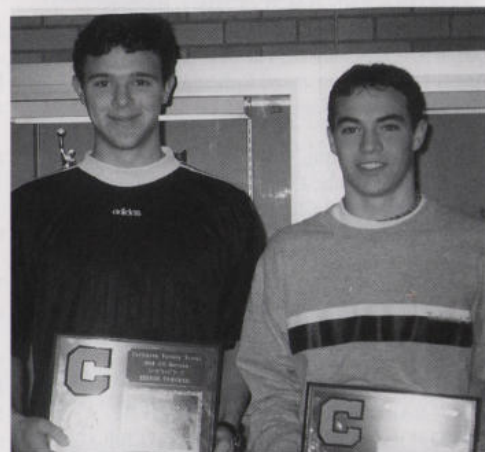

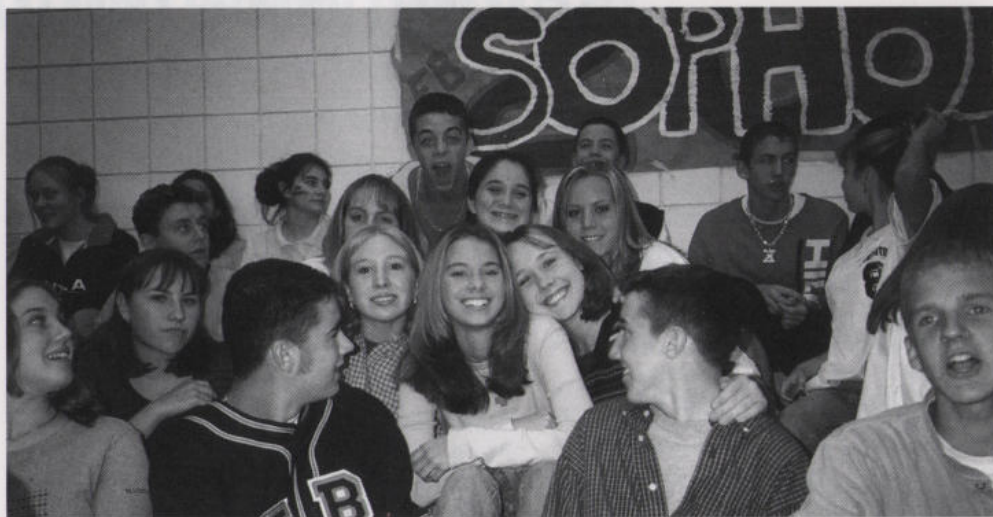

Q. Mangis, Mr. Bold, and Courtney Bold stand proud and tall on Senior Night.

Ernie Feeny, captain of the Junior High swim team, displays his trophy with a giddy smile. Going on to the Olympics, Ernie?

That's All,
